Army ROTC. Be all you can be.

John Morrell didn’t become a trainee after college. He became a manager.

As the 40th season of Suffolk football begins its second season under head coach Jeff McLaughlin, the team is full of optimism as they look to bounce back from a disappointing 2019 campaign. McLaughlin, who took over as head coach in 2018, has brought in several new additions to the squad in an effort to improve the team’s performance. With the return of several key players and the addition of new talent, the team is hoping to make a strong showing in the fall.

The team is off to a good start as they prepare for their season opener against Le Moyne College on September 30th. McLaughlin is confident in his team’s ability to compete at a high level and is looking forward to the challenge that each game presents.

Ashburton Place — is it ready to be opened?

by Nancy Rezendez

In the spring of 2021, Suffolk University announced plans to renovate Ashburton Place, a historic building in the heart of campus. The renovation was intended to create additional classroom and office space for students and faculty. However, some students and Faculty members have expressed concerns about the project, citing issues such as cost, timeline, and the potential impact on campus life.

The Ashburton Place renovation project has been the subject of much discussion and debate on campus. Some have praised the project as a much-needed improvement to the campus, while others have raised concerns about the financial cost and potential disruption to daily operations.

Deans decide freshmen can take ROTC courses

by Scott Hardy

Many colleges and universities offer ROTC programs to prepare students for careers in the military. These programs provide students with both academic and leadership training, and can be a valuable addition to their college experience. Suffolk University is no exception, and recently announced that freshmen students can now take ROTC courses.

The move is intended to provide students with more flexibility in their academic and career planning, and allows them to explore the possibility of serving in the military. Suffolk University has a long history of supporting military service, and is committed to providing students with a quality education that prepares them for success in any career path they choose.

Suffolk University has also been recognized for its commitment to supporting military service members, including offering ROTC programs and providing financial support for students who wish to serve in the military.

Robin Young: "Integrity and Caring"

In Christine Ahern's history class, the students are discovering the importance of integrity and caring in their lives. They have been learning about the values of these traits and how they can be applied in various situations.

The students are discussing the importance of integrity in terms of honesty, truthfulness, and reliability. They are exploring how integrity can help them build trust and respect with others. They are learning about the consequences of not living up to their values and how it can damage relationships and reputations.

Caring, on the other hand, is being discussed as a trait that involves empathy, compassion, and concern for others. The students are examining how caring can lead to positive outcomes and how it can make the world a better place.

The class is using case studies and real-life examples to illustrate the importance of integrity and caring. They are also discussing strategies for developing these traits and integrating them into their daily lives.

The students are encouraged to reflect on their own values and how they can incorporate integrity and caring into their actions. They are being challenged to make a commitment to living up to these values and to continue to grow and develop these traits.

The overall goal of the course is to help the students become more responsible and ethical members of society. By promoting integrity and caring, they will be better equipped to navigate the complexities of everyday life and make a positive impact on the world around them.

REVIEW – MUSIC
Duran Duran, a new sound

by Arin Consal
Duran Duran are quickly filling the shoes of the Rolling Stones in making hits. Their song "Hungry Like the Wolf" reached number 1 in the UK and number 4 in the US, and their album "Four Fourteen" has the potential to follow in the footsteps of their earlier albums. The band's sound is a mix of electronic and pop elements, with a heavy emphasis on synthesizers and electronic beats. Their music is catchy and danceable, making them a favorite among fans of the 80s pop scene.

The music grapevine

by Kevin Consal
Music in this century is getting to be quite a struggle. Artists like Bruce Springsteen and Dire Straits are gaining popularity, but the makeup of the audience is changing as well. Some artists are finding success with the older generation, while others are targeting the younger viewers. The music industry is adapting to these changes, with new genres emerging and old favorites gaining new life. It will be interesting to see how the music scene evolves in the coming years.

REVIEW – FILM
Werewolf for a powerful flight

by Josh Mastodon
Duran Duran's first film, "Hungry Like the Wolf," is a powerful flight into the world of werewolves and their struggle for survival. The film is directed by John Carpenter, known for his work on "Halloween" and "The Thing." The werewolf is a symbol of transformation and change, and the film explores these themes through the lives of the characters. The film's visuals are stunning, with a mix of practical effects and digital enhancements. The music is a key part of the film, with Duran Duran's music providing the perfect backdrop for the werewolf's transformation.

REVIEW – MUSIC
A Doobie goes solo for a powerful flight

by Jason Fantan
The Doobie Brothers, known for their fusion of rock and country music, are releasing a solo album by one of their members. The album contains a mix of acoustic and electric sounds, with a focus on the singer's powerful vocals. The music is both introspective and uplifting, with a message of hope and inspiration. The album is a great addition to the band's already impressive discography, and it's sure to be a hit with fans of all ages. The Doobie Brothers are a timeless classic, and this album proves that they are still relevant today.

A YEAR OUT OF COLLEGE, ANDA STRAUSS IS MAKING AVIATION HISTORY IN THE ARMY.

Anda Strauss, a 1986 graduate of Suffolk University, is making aviation history in the U.S. Army. Strauss, who is currently serving as a second lieutenant in the Army's ROTC program, is the first woman to be commissioned as an officer in the Army's ROTC program. Strauss was accepted into the program after completing her ROTC requirements and was selected for the program based on her academic and leadership achievements. Strauss has been recognized for her leadership skills and is currently serving as the battalion commander for the Suffolk University ROTC program. She is also working towards her master's degree in business administration.

Ashburton Building dedicated at Founder's Day ceremony

Suffolk University's annual Founder's Day celebration was held on September 18th, with the unveiling of the new Ashburton Building. The building was dedicated in honor of Suffolk University's founder, William Ashburn. The event included speeches by Suffolk University President J. Arden, Suffolk Business School Dean John A. Patricia, and Suffolk Law School Dean Thomas A. Landis. The event was attended by students, faculty, and staff, as well as alumni and community members.

The Ashburton Building is located on the university's campus and is designed to provide additional classroom and office space for the university's academic programs. The building includes 14 classrooms, 12 laboratories, and 10 offices, as well as a student lounge and a cafe. The building was designed by the architectural firm of GOB Architects, and construction was completed in 2019.
