Reagan ties Financial Aid to Draft Registration

By Jose Ibarra

When President Ronald Reagan signed the Department of Defense Authorization Bill (S2248) on September 7th, he not only funded the Pentagon’s coffers to the tune of a half million dollars for the fiscal year 1983, but he also added another line item to the act. The line item is an amendment to the draft registration act, which was recently introduced by Assistant Attorney General Richard Carell. The amendment is a significant step in the direction of fulfilling the President’s long-standing commitment to the draft registration system.

The amendment would require all men between the ages of 18 and 26 to register for the draft at least once a year. The registration system was established in 1940 to ensure that all eligible men were prepared to serve in the armed forces in times of conflict. However, the system has come under criticism in recent years for being outdated and ineffective.

The amendment would also establish a national database of draft registrants, which would be accessible to military authorities. This would allow for a more efficient and accurate selection of men for military service in time of war.

The amendment is expected to face opposition from civil libertarians who argue that it infringes on personal freedom. However, the President has indicated his strong support for the amendment, stating that it is an essential part of our national defense posture.

The amendment is now pending consideration in the Senate and is likely to receive strong support from the Republican Party. It remains to be seen whether the amendment will be enacted into law and how it will be implemented.

New job guide for students

By Jill Gersh

Another senior classmate’s resume turned around than most students can afford. His name is Joe Wilson, and he is a history major.

Wilson says that his senior year has been a hectic one. He has been working in the library, the registrar’s office, and the computer center, all of which he has done for the past three years.

Wilson says that his job experience has been invaluable. "I wouldn’t be where I am today without the help of my professors," he says. "They have been instrumental in helping me get where I am today."

Wilson also says that his job experience has helped him to get into a good graduate school. He will be attending the University of California at Los Angeles this fall.

Wilson’s advice to other students is to get as much experience as possible. "Get involved in as many activities as you can," he says. "It will help you in the long run."

PC rebuts SGA

By Suzanne Daz

The PC rebuts the SGA with the following statement: "The PC finds the SGA’s claims to be incorrect and contrary to fact. The PC believes that the SGA has been acting in an illegal and unethical manner. The PC will not tolerate such conduct and will take all necessary steps to ensure that it does not happen again."

The SGA is a student-run organization that acts as a representative body for the students of Suffolk University. It is responsible for a wide range of activities, including the planning of events, the allocation of funds, and the representation of student interests to the university administration.

The PC, on the other hand, is the governing body of the university, responsible for making decisions on a wide range of matters, including policy, finance, and governance. The PC is composed of the university’s faculty, staff, and student representatives.

The PC rebuts the SGA’s claims, stating that the SGA has been acting in a way that is contrary to the university’s policies and procedures.

Open House a success
By Pauline Mckean
The Student Association held an open house in the Sawyer Building on Saturday, October 2, SunoU. Jo omb, October 1, 1962, for the evening division and the first floor of the educational foundation building will be open to the public.

The event was a great success, drawing a large crowd of students, faculty, and staff. The atmosphere was lively and energetic, with music playing in the background and people socializing throughout the space.

The Student Association invited visitors to explore the facilities and learn more about the evening division. There were informational booths set up with representatives from various departments, including academic advising, financial aid, and student activities.

In addition to the informational booths, there were also refreshments available for guests, including drinks and snacks. The open house was a fantastic opportunity for people to connect with the university community and learn more about the evening division's offerings.

Overall, the open house was a great success, showcasing the vibrancy and diversity of the evening division's programs and services. It was a wonderful opportunity for visitors to engage with the university and learn more about what the evening division has to offer.

Cockroach Combat

A shirt for Ted

The Tuesday meeting of the Student Senate called for a show of support for Ted Knight and his family.

The idea of the protest was to show that the student body can unite in support of their fellow students and not allow them to be bullied by the administration.

The protest was a success and the students showed their support for Ted and his family.

Rebuttal about Cruise

Dear Editor,

I read with interest your recent article about the effects of the cruise on the local community. While I agree that the presence of the cruise ships can have some positive impacts, I believe that the author's conclusion that the cruise industry is good for the economy is overly optimistic.

I believe that the cruise industry has a significant negative impact on the environment and the local community. The ships generate a large amount of pollution and create noise pollution, which can have a negative impact on the local community.

Furthermore, the cruise industry is often associated with human rights abuses and worker exploitation. I believe that it is important for the community to consider the long-term effects of the cruise industry on the local community.

Validity of probation method

The article by Professor John McOndel on the validity of the probation method is highly relevant to the current discussion on student conduct and discipline.

The probation method, while it may have some benefits, also has its drawbacks. It is important for the administration to consider the effectiveness of the probation method and to weigh the potential costs and benefits.

I believe that there are other methods that could be considered, such as restorative justice, which could be more effective in addressing student conduct issues.

Tropical Marine Science Program

The Tropical Marine Science Program was announced by Dr. John McOndel, the Dean of the College of Marine Science.

The program will focus on the study of tropical marine ecosystems and their role in the global climate system.

I believe that this program will be a valuable addition to the college and will provide students with the opportunity to study an important and rapidly changing field.

Sincerely,

Suffolk Society elects treasurer

The Suffolk Society recently elected Undergraduate President Louis Cortese as its new treasurer.

The Suffolk Society is a student organization that promotes academic excellence and provides opportunities for students to engage in extracurricular activities.

I believe that Louis Cortese will be an excellent treasurer and will provide strong leadership for the Suffolk Society.

Sincerely,

Union's power affects economy

By John McOndel

The recent strike by the students at the University of California has had significant impacts on the local economy.

The strike has caused a significant disruption to the normal flow of business in the area, and has had a negative impact on the local businesses.

I believe that it is important for the administration to consider the impact of student protests on the local economy and to work with the students to find a solution that is fair for both sides.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

SAT and SDT available

The Suffolk Society recently announced that SAT and SDT sessions will be available for students.

I believe that this will be a valuable service for students, and will help to ensure that all students have the opportunity to participate in these important exams.

Sincerely,

PROBATION LEAST PC

The article by Professor John McOndel on the probation method is a valuable addition to the discussion on student conduct and discipline.

I believe that the probation method can be an effective tool in addressing student conduct issues. However, it is important for the administration to consider the potential drawbacks of the method and to seek out alternative approaches.

Sincerely,

Silence is not golden with a broken Walkman

By Mary Pancake

If you were ever in the software business as a consultant or a developer, then you know that silence is not golden. It can be a sign of stress, a lack of communication, or simply a break in the conversation. But when it comes to a broken Walkman, silence can be a sign of something else altogether.

One of the most frustrating things about a broken Walkman is the inability to use it. You can try to fix it, but often times, the damage is too great and you end up having to replace it. This can be expensive when you consider the cost of a new Walkman and the time it takes to replace the old one.

Working Walkman are popular.
