Suffolk Continues Search for Diversity

by Heather A. Swails

Suffolk University 1990: Deadline for Diversity, a conference that was held last Friday at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel, was yet another step in Suffolk's efforts to promote an atmosphere of cultural diversity and awareness in the Suffolk community.

Approximately 60 people from across the university, including President Sargent, administrators, faculty, student leaders and other interested students, were invited to attend this day long conference.

The conference had two main goals. One, "to explore ways that prejudice and discrimination (e.g. based on race, sex, disability, nationality, or sexual orientation) may manifest themselves in the life of Suffolk University." Two, "to identify strategies for addressing prejudice and discrimination and issues of multicultural education in the on-going policies and practices of the university."

A four member consultant team representing "a balance of race and sex" conducted the conference. The consultants were Horace Seldon, Director of Community Change, Inc., Joyce King, educational consultant, Miren Uriarte, Director of the Mauricio Gaston Institute for Latino Community Development; and Fred Dow, Director of the Asian American Resource Workshop.

Seldon, along with Suffolk University Conference Committee members planned the content of the conference. Committee members included Sharon Artis, Assistant to the President; Karen Blum, Law School Professor; Clarence Cooper, SOM Associate Professor; Paul Korn, Professor-Counseling Center;

Judy Minardi, Director of Human Resources; David Robbins, CLAS Assistant Dean; and Nancy Stoll, Dean of Students.

Participants in the conference met in large and small discussion groups to discuss the above cited goals. The hope is that the result of the conference will be the implementation of short as well as long-term plans-of-action that will meet Suffolk University's needs for more cultural diversity and awareness.

The above information was provided by Sharon Artis, Assistant to the President.

Wired At Last!

by Adam Mendonça

WSFR will begin broadcasting during the second week of semester. "We need the first week to allow the DJ's to get acquainted with the new equipment," said GM Joe Lusso. The station is equipped with new turntables, a CD player, and tape player. The station is still waiting for one piece of furniture which will hold the new turntables but can use the old turntables until the furniture comes in.

There will be diverse programming. "We have a DJ who wants to do a classical show which pleases some of the faculty," Lusso said. "We also have a show on Friday afternoon which will be called JAM session, the show is still being developed but it will contain top 40, oldies, and comedy."

Lusso added that there are other programs which he would like to see, like an interview or sports series. The shows will be required to play at least fifteen minutes of play list which is progressive music.

There are phones in the cafeteria which will enable students to call the station to make requests. Each room which has a speaker will have a volume control as well. The sound system is impressive and everyone will agree, provide clear and powerful sound.

The only question which remains is how the radio station will solve the small problem of the budget. The cost of the engineering — the studio was more than their budget could handle. Lusso doesn't see this as a major problem, though "We are currently discussing ways to solve this and I am sure it will be taken care of soon."

We all look forward to the first radio show and the many shows which will follow.

"The student body should be pleased with the station and we hope to hear from them with some ideas on what they want to hear," said Lusso.

GM Joe Lusso tests WSFR's new broad casting equipment.

Luncheon Remembers Martin Luther King Jr.

by Donnette Madrey

At Suffolk University's 8th Annual Martin Luther King Celebratory Luncheon, guest speaker Derrick Jackson, reporter for the Boston Globe, said that for nearly a quarter and a century later, America is showing that it has much to learn from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

During the buffet style luncheon held on January 23 in the Sawyer building, outside visitors as well as university members listened to Jackson's keynote address titled "African American Progress and Hard Realities."

After a prayer and an opening anthem, "Lift Every Voice And Sing," the President of Black Student Union Ernest Guerrier gave a welcoming speech in remembrance of Dr. Martin Luther King.

"In honoring the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, it is a time for rejoicing and reflecting," said Guerrier. According to Guerrier, Dr. King challenged people to make real the promise of America as a land of freedom, equality, opportunity and brotherhood.

Before ending his speech, Guerrier suggested that institutions all over America must encourage racism discussion and debates amongst different races and cultures so that we can understand and appreciate each other as members of the human race.

In ending his speech, Guerrier said, "We must work together and break down the racial side of racism and build a nation of brotherhood."

Jackson then took over. "We have to think very seriously what is progress and what is not," he said.

Jackson said that King was imaginative about practical concerns and that King had proposed an idea to end unemployment completely by creating a national agency that would provide a job for every person that needed work.

"The problem is that King and America didn't see the same evil back then. And white and black America don't see the same evil today."

In quoting King, Jackson said that America has been and continues to be largely a racist society. "There has been so much talk and healing and relatively little about hitting the issue of racism head on," Jackson said.

According to Jackson, statistics show that the gap in infant mortality between black and white Americans has increased since 1940 and the gap in unemployment has increased over the last 10 years.

"I really truly wonder how many of our young people really do see concretely the condition that they're in."

Jackson said that African Americans, 125 years after the Emancipation Proclamation, are still caught up in a ping-pong game of trying to find a home.

He also said that thirty-five years ago his parents moved to the North because they thought that the North would welcome them with dignity.

But, according to Jackson, in 1989 national stories tell how banks across the country have been denying African-American neighborhoods their fair share of home mortgages.

"Two weeks ago census data tells us that African-Americans have begun moving back South."

"In 1968 King said that the American people are infected with racism, and democratic ideals. While doing wrong they have the potential to do right, but they do not have a millennium to make changes," said Jackson. "All of us are at trial in this trouble hour, but time permits us to meet the future with a clear conscience," he said.

Jackson ended his speech by saying, "thank you for inviting me today and let us try to work together to clear America's conscience while time still permits."

After Jackson's speech Wendy Sanford, of the campus ministry, invited the audience to share their thoughts in remembrance of Dr. Martin Luther King.

During a moment of silence, a few people from the audience shared their thoughts. One person said that racism works both ways and suggested that people should put more effort into understanding each other.

Another comment made from a person from the audience was that people are taught from the home. She said that she was not aware of the racial tension until she came to America.

"I didn't see this white against black tension until I came to America. It's very important that those of us who have a hold on what's going on now teach it to our children so that they don't grow up color blind. It's the idea that people put inside they're head that changes their minds."

Sugarman New Dean at Law School

President David J. Sargent announced the appointment of Paul R. Sugarman as dean of Suffolk University Law School on December 19, 1989. Sugarman, a former president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, is one of Boston's most distinguished lawyers.

"The selection of Paul Sugarman is a bold move for the Law School and enhances the prestige of the entire university," said Sargent in making the announcement. "It is a testament to Paul's commitment to academic excellence and scholarly pursuit that he will leave his successful practice to join us at Suffolk."

Sugarman succeeds Sargent who, after leading the Law School to 16 years of unprecedented growth, stepped down to become president of the 5500 student university.

Walter H. McLaughlin, former chief Justice of the Superior Court and chairman of the trustee search Committee that unanimously voted for Sugarman, called the decision "an exceptional choice, one everyone can be proud of."

Swiss Exchange to be Offered this Summer

by Heather A. Swails

Want to live, study, and travel in Europe this summer? A new exchange program with the American College of Switzerland in Leysin, Switzerland will provide interested Suffolk students with just that opportunity this summer from May 27 until July 6.

Accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools, the American College of Switzerland in Leysin is located just 45 minutes from France and 90 minutes from Italy. Germany's Black Forest and the Austrian Alps are to the north and east.

The cost of this unique exchange program is set at $3700. If more than 12 Suffolk students enroll, however, the cost will be $3500. Financial aid will be made available.

Coordinated by Dean of Enrollment Management Marguerite Dennis, the program cost includes two 3 credit courses as well as tuition, room, meals and fees.

There will be five course offerings from which participants may choose.

These include The European Community: Economics and Political Perspectives; Public International Law and International Organization (all of which include visits to Geneva, Brussels, and The Hague), in addition to Alpine Environment and Ecology and a new course, Europe-1992.

Classes will be conducted in english and will meet for 1 hour and 45 minutes, Monday through Thursday leaving Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays for travel.

An extra-curricular travel program includes 3-day trips to the following locations for the indicated additional cost: Rome, $285; Paris, $285; Nice, $285; Munich, $325. Prices include train transportation and hotel costs.

The financial aid deadline for participation in this exchange program is March 1 and the deadline for application is May 1. To apply, see Dean Dennis on floor 25 of One Beacon Street.

Trustee's Ambassador Scholarhsip to be Offered

CORRECTION:

On December 4, the article "Trustee's Ambassador Scholarship to be Offered" appeared in the Journal. Unfortunately, that article contained several inaccuracies. Below is a revised edition of the article. We apologize for any inconveniences.

Applications for the $5000 Trustee's Ambassador Scholarship will be available in the Financial Office this week.

Based upon merit insofar as applicants are required to have and maintain a 2.8 GPA, this scholarship looks for "good communication skills, maturity, reliability, and the ability to interface with different types of people" in its candidates.

Applicants can be either freshmen or transfer students who have completed one full year at Suffolk University. All applicants must go through an interviewing process before scholarships are awarded. It is anticipated that six scholarships will be available. They will be awarded later this spring for the 1990 fall semester.

The Trustee's Ambassador Scholarship was instigated last year by the Student Government Association and Director of Financial Aid Christine Perry. Thusfar it has proven a great success.

Ambassadors are asked to do 300 hours of work for the school during the school year. The work commitment is broken down to ten hours a week with jobs alternating from enrollment management (telemarketing), undergraduate admissions, the dean's office, financial aid, and graduate admissions. Selection as an ambassador gives students excellent opportunities to obtain skills that will enhance college careers and resumes.

The 1989 Trustee's Ambassadors are: Kristine Drury, Sheila Egan, Tami Kearns, Jane Kelly, Peter Kobelt, Lisa Masciarelli, Tim McDonald, Karen Perry, Dawna Sugarman, and Eileen Warren.

Suffolk Students Look Ahead

What Will the 90's Bring?

Suffolk Journal reporters asked students last semester, "What would you like to see happen in the 90's?"

photos by Candida Ferreira

MaryBeth Sweeney, History

I would like to see tuition rates maintain and I would like to see more financial aid and more advertising for Suffolk.

Lisa Olivieri, Senior, Journalism and Cindy Kotafis, Senior, Criminal Justice

We would like to get a real job, be married by the late 90's and have four and a half kids and a BMW.

William MacArdle, Junior, Government

I would like to see Scotland, Ireland, and Wales become independent from England. I would like to see unification of East and West Germany. Also, I would like girls to ask guys out and for everyone to wear pink sneakers (heh-heh). Finally, I would like to see John McEnroe become number one again.

Sheila Edwards, Sophomore, Communications

I would like to see world peace — less fighting. I would also like to see less money spent on defense in America and more money spent on the problems that are at hand.

Nancy Nazzaro, Sophomore, Psychology

I would like to see a sign on Bowdoin Street saying the students have the right of way.

Kelley Costin, Sophomore, Education

I would like to see a woman become the president of the United States.

David R. Rossingnol, Senior, Philosophy/Communications

I think we should have a student Union instead of all these segregated unions.

Rob Cormier, Graduate, Human Resource Development for Aviation Systems

I would like to see the removal of all long range missiles from the United States and the Soviet Union. In addition, I would like to see communication with people from other planets and also for Raymond Berry to be fired.

Tom Belmonte, Freshman, Government

I would like to see a continuation of negotiations for international and domestic problems like world peace and poverty. It is also my hope that students will utilize a school like Suffolk to set and achieve goals for a better future.

Welcome Back

To those of you who have been here before, welcome back! To those of you who haven't, welcome to Suffolk University! I am happy to say that all of us at the Suffolk Journal had a great holiday break. But now we are ready to get back to work. Before we can do that, though, we need your help. Currently we are short on staff reporters. If you write and are interested in getting involved in newspapering, we will be more than happy to welcome you onto our staff. Good luck this semester... hope to see you soon.

Heather A. Swails

Don't Just Sit There

From personal experience, I have found that going to a university can be more fulfilling if you get involved in some sort of extra-curricular activity at the university. When I came to Suffolk as a transfer student, I got involved with the Journal. Now I have new friends and I always know what is going on here at Suffolk.

Unfortunately, not everyone has realized the importance of getting involved here. I believe more students should get involved, including students who have been here before.

Get involved by joining an organization or club or going to sporting events. I was at the Suffolk vs Framingham State game a few weeks ago but I didn't see many Suffolk students there. That's too bad.

I know this is a commuter school but I don't think it's impossible to attend some hockey or basketball games or spend some time with a club or organization or go to a rat.

Believe me, if you get involved in a club or organization or attend games and other events, your time here will be something you will carry with you for the rest of your life... you may also make life-long friends.

At the SGA

by Gary Christenson

In return, we hope to obtain some opinions from you about the issue so that we can ultimately formulate policies that better serve Suffolk University.

Again, this first column of the spring semester is a welcome back, but I would like to point out that these are exciting times for Suffolk University, with the addition of the new Student Activities Center, WSFR beginning to broadcast around campus, and the new Ridgeway building complete with basketball courts and exercise equipment, which is scheduled to be up and ready by January

On behalf of the Student Government Association, I would like to welcome everyone back from what was hopefully a very happy and safe holiday. The SGA looks forward to working with you in the spring semester.

For the new students, the SGA instituted an "At the SGA" column, in the 1988-1989 legislative session in order to become more accessible to the student body. Along with SGA bulletin boards, office hours, and the filming of meetings, we run a column every week in the Suffolk Journal detailing the points about an upcoming and current issues.

of 1991. I would like to take this opportunity to commend the university for its move forward into the new decade. It sure feels good that in this time of uncertainty with other New England colleges that this one has taken the lead to really invest in our future.

On that note, I would like to wish each and every one of you the best of luck in your academic as well as social endeavors here at Suffolk University. And remember, it is here where we plant the seeds to our future.

The 80's: Highs and Lows

by Michael Scafidi

Wow! The 80's are over. It's hard to believe but it's even tougher to accept. For many of us it held many special moments.

We all grew up during the 80's. We graduated from high school, turned 21 (OK some of us did, others got fake ID's) and eventually did something all of us have in common — we came to school at Suffolk University.

The 80's were a decade in which people wanted things to be the way they were, old time values were in, as was nostalgia. We went into the decade with Ronald Reagan as our president looking for him to instill a sense of pride in America which we felt we lacked.

The 80's, like any other decade, had its share of low points. It marked the increase in crime, such as gang violence and white collar crime. Eventually, all crimes boiled down to one thing. . . DRUGS. Drugs tore apart countries, communities and families. They will long be remembered as the most terrible part of the decade.

Minority students at Suffolk saw a man that they looked up to removed from his duties as professor. Racism is and was a burning issue for students and faculty.

There were disasters that were both man-made and natural. There was the Korean jet liner, Pam Am flight 103, and the Challenger — the shock is still wearing off for some. In 1983, 260 Marines were killed, some before they even got out of bed. An average of 23,000 people a year were killed in alcohol related accidents.

AIDS has affected all of us. It was termed the Polio of the 80's, but there's no vaccine for AIDS. Mount Saint Helens shook many people in the state of Washington in 1980. On the other end of the decade San Francisco saw its worst earthquake since 1906.

In the 80's, like any other decade, new leaders emerged. Mikhail Gorbachev and Lech Walesa helped bring democracy to the communist-block countries. Sandra Day O'Connor and Jessie Jackson showed minorities that they too could thing big. Musician Bob Geldof helped spread the word to combat famine around the world.

We actually saw the Berlin Wall come down. If someone had told you that would happen in the 80's, you would have laughed them off the face of the earth. The Statue of Liberty, a strong symbol to many immigrants, was given a facelift and presented to all in grand fashion.

It was a decade in which Suffolk saw President Daniel Perlman come and go and the arrival of David Sargent to lead us into the 90's. Some students even saw their tuition being put to (good?) use with the construction of the new Student Activities Center and the beginning of the new Ridgeway building.

On New Year's Eve in 1979 I was scared. I don't know if it was because we were leaving the 70's or because of what the 80's had in store. It was a lot for a 13 year-old to endure at the time. The possibility of George Orwell's novel 1984 was eerie as the 80's approached. But big brother left us alone. Some psychics said World War III would erupt in 1985 or something like that, but the biggest news of that year (or the decade) was the emergence of Gorbachev as leader of the USSR instead.

The event, which helped change my outlook on the 80's and makes the 90's look promising occurred in Lake Placid, New York during the '80 Winter Olympics. Do you believe in miracles? If there ever was a perfect event to start a decade with, that was it.

Many memories of the 80's will fade and become nostalgia just as memories from any other decade. Some of it will become a mere shadow of the past, but we will never forget the person or people who helped us in times of need.

1989 was an incredible year for people around the globe and it seemed like the perfect year to slingshot us into the 90's. Let's hope and pray that it continues and that all may prosper from it.

Rape Awareness Program To Be Presented

by Olivia Derridinger

A Rape Awareness Program for the Suffolk Community is scheduled to take place on Tuesday, January 30 from 1-2:30 p.m. and Thursday, February 1 from 12:30-2:30.

The program, which is co-sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon and the Women's Center, will feature a panel discussion on Tuesday followed by a film and workshops on Thursday.

Phyllis Bailey and Joel Shapiro are the coordinators of the program. The goal of the program is to get information concerning rape out to the Suffolk community. Everyone is encouraged to attend — faculty, staff, students.

We all have known, or will know, someone who has been the victim of sexual assault or rape. Rape leaves a scar that does not heal the way putting a new lock on the door can help, though. Being robbed of anything leaves the victim feeling scared, insecure, and out of control. Victims of sexual assault are robbed of their sense of self. . . how does one replace that?

The FBI classifies rape as second only to murder in its severity. Statistics show that 1 in 4 women will be the victim of sexual assault or rape.

Rape includes stranger rape and acquaintance rape. Most rapes are acquaintance rapes — the victim knows the rapist, be it a classmate, someone they have seen in the store, or a boyfriend.

The way we respond to someone who has survived sexual assault of any kind can determine whether or not that person will be able to regain their feeling of control and their sense of self respect and safety. If we respond inappropriately and express our own confusion and fear, we can greatly hinder the person from recovering from the assault.

Most people are confused about rape and date rape. Where does this act of violence come from? Many assume it is the victim's fault — the way she dressed, alcohol. . . No. These are only excuses to make it easier for us to explain a crime that can shake the foundations on which relationships are built.

A Sexual Harrassment Seminar is also scheduled to take place on Thursday, February 8 in Archer 110 at 1 p.m.

Spielberg's 'Always' Perfect

by Heather A. Swails

Spielberg has done it again! First he brought us Close Encounters and then E.T. Now he has managed to once again bring his genius alive on the screen with his most recent movie Always, starring Holly Hunter, Richard Dreyfuss, and John Goodman.

Always is perhaps Spielberg's finest movie yet. A perfect mixture of drama, romance, action, suspense, and comedy, Always bring us into the world of forest-fire fighters and revolves around a very unique, sensitive love triangle.

Dreyfuss takes on the role of a hotshot pilot who has found his "niche" in the forest-fire fighting profession. His character finds nothing more exciting than to fly a two-propellered plane into blazing forest fires with its load of fire fighting chemicals. Goodman, a regular on the television sit-com Roseanne, takes on a similar role as Dreyfuss' best friend. Hunter plays a young, "green" pilot with whom Dreyfuss' character is in love. This character spends most of her time fearing for the life of the man she loves. Always also features a handsome, bespeckled stranger who forms the third part of a love triangle which involves Hunter and Dreyfuss.

In short, Always is brilliantly acted and directed and somewhat more down to earth than many of Spielberg's other films. This Spielberg movie is a sure thing, as Spielberg movies Always are. So, if you feel you haven't seen a really good movie in a long time, see Always. It is guaranteed to satisfy.

Suffolk Welcomes New Students

by Heather A. Swails

New freshmen and transfer students were warmly welcomed to Suffolk University at the spring orientation January 16 and 17. The theme of the orientation was "Cafe Suffolk."

During the two day long orientation process new students were welcomed by Suffolk staff, students and administrators. An enthusiastic student orientation staff gave directions, led tours, and basically made everyone feel at home at Suffolk University.

The first day featured a welcome address in C. Walsh Theater followed by campus tours, small group information sessions, and workshops to get new students familiar with campus services, organizations, and clubs. After these, the students were divided into SOM/CLAS groups, each of which were addressed by their respective deans. Lunch was followed by academic advising.

The second day featured a repeat of some of the workshops, club/service/organization tables and registration.

Overall, orientation went very smoothly. Everyone had good feelings about it.

"I think orientation was good," said sophomore Mike Belmonte, a transfer from Quincy Jr. College. Carl Christ, a freshman who transferred from North Adams State agreed.

Director of Student Activities Donna Schmidt was very pleased with the success of this year's spring orientation. "The student orientation staff members really made the two days go smoothly. They were really helpful to all the new students coming in," she said. "The success of the orientation is really a result of the teamwork between the student staff, the faculty who assisted in academic advising, the registrar's office and their staff, and all the other university services that provided the welcome atmosphere."

Ridgeway . . . Under Way

by Joe J. Lusso

Rain may have put a damper on the ground breaking of the new Ridgeway Building last September, but now that the foundation is in, the reality of it all is coming together.

Doreen M. Matta, Assistant Director of Athletics, looks out her window hardly believing she will actually see the long awaited athletic facility Suffolk University so desperately needs.

"What this means for the athletic programs, we can only guess, but it is all positive," said Matta who is an alumna of the university.

The new Ridgeway Building (not the official name) has a target completion date of January 1991. Some of us remember it as the old Stop and Shop converted to Suffolk's Student Activities building. "It was an ugly building that I thought I'd never work in," said Marjorie Hewitt, Assistant Director of Student Activities.

Along the construction site there is a pedestrian walkway which features storyboards. These boards break down the four floors, including the basement level of the new building as well as a sketch of the exterior.

Above the pedestrian walkway is a sign that announces Suffolk University: Building The Future. The signs, along with the storyboards, were provided by the Institutional Advancement Department through the Capital Campaign Project.

The new building, which will house various offices and facilities, is located at 122 Cambridge Street and will cost approximately $8 million.

The new Ridgeway Building will include a basketball court at the basement level, the book store at street level, an aerobic weight room, Dean of Students office, two classrooms, a conference room, the Ballotti Learning Center and the entire Communications and Journalism department.

"I believe it took 20 years for the Beacon Hill Civic Association and Suffolk University to come to terms as to how the building will look," said Hewitt. The agreement to build came about a year ago, this was one of former President Perlman's pet projects. He actively battled to get the building underway for over ten years, which is about when he entered the university.

Student Government Association President Gary Christenson said, "The new building will add a whole new dimension to the university. With such facilities as a gymnasium and a weight room, more students will stay on campus. It will give students the opportunity to work off the stress that is so commonly incurred."

Reportedly, Director of Athletics James Nelson has been working closely with the architect, James McNeely, in coordinating the design and plans of the new Ridgeway Building. Nelson has had an interest in this project for over fifteen years.

Matta said Nelson toured the campus with perspective investors last week. Finding a donor to lend his or her name to the building by donating the largest amount of money is the current goal next to the completion of the building.

Although a lot of the upperclassmen won't be here to enjoy the new facilities Ridgeway will offer, it will be worth a trip back.

We'll now have a much more important and broader base to work with the student population who don't want to participate in varsity programs," Matta added.

Most would agree that a donor will be found, but let's not forget that the Derne Street Student Center didn't get anyone to lend their name to it.

With all the work Jim Nelson has put into this project, we can always name the building after him, said Hewitt.

'Born On the Fourth' Impressive

by Marly Charry

During the 47th Annual Golden Globe Award presentation held in New York on January 20, the new Oliver Stone movie Born On the Fourth of July won three awards — one for best director (Oliver Stone), one for best movie, and one for best screenplay. Tom Cruise, who portrayed Ron Kovic in this movie based on Kovic's book, also won a golden globe for best actor.

Cruise plays Kovic as a high school senior whose dream it is to serve his country. Enlisting in the U.S. Marines, he goes to Vietnam to fight in the war.

During the war he makes many errors that impact his life such as killing innocent people.

In Vietnam, he is shot, leaving him paralyzed from the waist down. At home

he is honored as a hero, but the people's protestations against the war depress him greatly. He becomes so depressed that he goes to Mexico to work out his feelings. When he returns to the U.S. he joins the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. With this group, he protests during the presidential elections of 1972 and is nearly arrested. Four years after this he is honored for the writing of his book (upon which the movie is based).

Born On the Fourth of July is a very impressive movie, especially in the way it is developed. The theme can be somewhat depressive but very educational at the same time. It can also change your point of view on life. Cruise's great performance shows a mature grown-up side completely different from the one we are all used to seeing.

Kruse Leads Lady Rams

by Ross Neville

In a classic mismatch of size and strength, the Suffolk Lady Rams used both of those factors to maximum advantage in pummelling Simmons College 64-43 last Wednesday night in Cambridge.

Led by the inside scoring of center Anne Christian Kruse, the Rams jumped out to a quick 8 point lead by the midway point of the first half and never looked back.

Suffolk, who trailed only once in this game, 23-22, and took a seven point margin to the dressing room, almost exclusively on the scoring of Kruse and forward Laura Long. The pair accounted for 28 of the team's 32 first half points.

The Suffolk strategy throughout the game was to have guards such as Tammy Cordiero feed the ball inside to Kruse who simply used her height advantage to score at will.

By the 6 minute mark of the 2nd half Suffolk had opened up a comfortable 12 point margin and showed no signs of letting up. Simmons shooting was cold all night and Suffolk did a great job of not allowing the opposition any inside scoring. In fact Simmons scored but one basket inside, the rest were the result of outside jump shots. Suffolk cut off the passing game down low.

Kruse finished the night with 32 points in the midst of a blowout. Long followed Kruse to the bench with a 14 point effort an while Kelly Harney, who had a quiet first half, came alive down the stretch, to nailed consecutive 3-point shots and ended the evening with 13 points.

The team record now stands at 5 wins and 10 defeats for the year. Considering all starters back from last year, Doreen Matta felt, "we would be a little better than 5 and 10 at this point." Matta stated the team simply "did not play as well as we are capable of playing early in the season."

Rams Butt Horns

by Michael Scafidi

The Suffolk University Rams butt horns with the Framingham State Rams January 10 in their first game since the semester break. Unfortunately for SU, it was the other Rams who skated away with the victory 6-4.

Almost five minutes into the game, Framingham States' Chris Macrina scored on a quick shot from the slot to give them an early lead.

Each team was scoreless until the 13 minute mark when John Greaney of FS was exiting the penalty box after serving a two minute minor for tripping.

Greaney took the puck and scored on a clean breakaway. Framingham ended first period scoring 77 seconds later on a slapshot from the right point by Bill Collins.

At the beginning of the second period SU jumped on the board quick on a Brian Gruning goal. Gruning took a pass from the corner and put it past Framingham's goalie Mike McCarthy stick side and cut the deficit to two.

Framingham answered the bell with tough checking, slowing down the Suffolk skaters. They also did with two more goals sending SU to the locker room down 5-1 after two periods.

Suffolk mounted a comeback in the beginning of the third period on Grunings second goal of the night and a score by Mark Tsokalas. This cut Framingham's lead to two with 13 minutes left to play.

Framingham squashed any chance on another Greaney goal and some terrific goal tending by McCarthy.

The lone bright spot for SU was a goal by Brian Horan that could only be described as breathtaking. Horan collected the puck in the Suffolk end and proceeded to skate past every player on the ice before putting the puck past the Framingham netminder.

Suffolk coach Peter Sagasi said, "We weren't ready. We took them much too lightly."

"We've played well against the good teams yet we have been the first victories for the likes of Framingham and Worcester State," he added.

Suffolk's record drops to 6-4 while Framingham boosted themselves to 1-9-1.
