Recycling committee to reform program

By Dena Barisano
JOURNAL STAFF

After a strong initial start almost four years ago, the university-wide recycling committee is reforming to overhaul Suffolk's recycling program.

The original committee went through many stages and official names over the past few years including: The University Recycling Committee (February 1991), the Administrative Recycling Committee A.R.C. (February of 1992), and the Recycling Effort and Suffolk University Recycling Coordinating Committee SURCC (dates uncertain).

These new committee members have several major tasks ahead since the campus recycling program is no longer well-maintained or functioning to its full potential. The committee is composed of: University Safety Officer Judy Scanlon, Director of Student Activities Donna Schmidt, law school office manager of support services Marilyn Morehouse, and Ann Lyons from the law school environmental society.

Forensics team take seventh place in Washington

By Christina Tealdo
JOURNAL STAFF

The Weekend of December 2, the Suffolk Forensics team traveled to our nation’s capitol for the American University Christmas Classic finishing in seventh place. Schools like Harvard University, American University, George Mason University, and other top ranked schools participated.

This season's Debate topic was Welfare Reform; nationally a very hot issue in the political circles, affecting a large segment of the population. Each school’s Debate team has been researching the Welfare system and developing Welfare Reform proposals.

Mary Cunningham progressed through the preliminary rounds of Debate into the final rounds. Cunningham placed second in Debate. Vickey Whelan advanced through the preliminary rounds to the semi-finals. Whelan ended Debate with a third place showing.

In addition to Debate there were the individual events. Individual Events fall into three primary categories: Public Address, Interpretive, and Limited Preparation. Public Address Speaking covers such areas as Informatory Speaking, Rhetoric Criticism, and other related events. Poetry, Prose and Duo competitions fall into the Interpretive category. The Limited Preparation events include Extemporaneous and Impromptu speaking.

The Limited Preparation Speaking events set time limits for preparing a speech on subjects not known before the competition. Time can range from 1 1/2 minutes to 30 minutes to research and prepare.

Suffolk Republicans take on Washington

By Christian Engler

The Suffolk University College Republicans traveled to Washington D.C. for the Republican Leadership Conference on Thursday, December 1. The retreat, which was organized by College Republican Chairman Jim Pagano, gave students the opportunity to learn more about the Republican party, the Republican agenda and its plans which will affect the United States.

At the Capitol, the first item on the agenda was to meet with Massachusetts Congressman Peter G. Torkelson and then go to the Senate and listen to the debate on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), a trade bill which is expected to bring billions of dollars into the world’s commerce in the next decade.

Senate-elect Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kansas) said that the United States must be open to business needs and listen to the debate on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), a trade bill which is expected to bring billions of dollars into the world’s commerce in the next decade.

The current account representa­tive from Sterling Packaging, Bill Britain confirms that Sterling is still operating this building’s recycling program for the R.M. Bradley Manage­ment Company. Suffolk Police Captain saves man’s life

By Ryan Foley

A seventy-year-old man was re­vived last Wednesday morning in the Sawyer building’s lobby, min­utes after collapsing unconscious on Ashburn Place from a heart attack.

Edward O’Donnell, a native of West Roxbury, was walking to a meeting with another man around 10 a.m., when he suddenly collapsed upon the sidewalk. Carried by his companion, Boston Fire Chief Josep Fleming, and a passserby, O’Donnell was brought to the Sawyer lobby.

While the fire chief began car­diopulmonary resuscitation upon the unconscious man amidst Suffolk stu­dents and faculty, University Police Captain John Pagliarulo arrived on the scene after receiving the emer­gency call. “My first thought was that I wanted to help this man,” the Somerville man said, recalling when he saw O’Donnell sprawled upon the lobby floor. Upon the captain’s ar­ival, O’Donnell had stopped breath­ing and did not have a pulse. Immediately Pagliarulo com­menced to giving O’Donnell mouth­to-mouth resuscitation, while another campus officer, Sergeant Michael Ryan, took over for Fleming in administ­ering chest compressions. The heart attack victim came to within several seconds and was brought to the hospital. O’Donnell, a management information systems employee at the Boston Fire Depart­ment, was listed in fair condition as of last week at Massachusetts Gen­eral Hospital.

Pagliarulo is a CPR instructor at Suffolk through the Human Re­sources Department, yet his rescue on Wednesday morning was the first for him and his staff. “It really was teamwork, it wasn’t just the effort of one individual,” Pagliarulo stated. “It was people helping people, that’s all. We need more individuals in this world who care. There’s just not enough.”

O’Donnell, a management infor­mation systems employee at the Bos­ton Fire Department, was listed in fair condition in the intensive care unit as of last week at Massachusetts General Hospital.
She continued, "Many Americans believe that the values and beliefs of conservatives are more likely to vote conservatives are fed up with the fact that center of conservatism."want to succeed and I think that is the minority houses and not institutions of higher schools are being used as store now is a registered Republican. was once a liberal Democrat, but committee of Richard Nixon's Six-montable."people today. We are in a time of trouble, but we can survive, because if we love our children, our country, and our dreams, nothing is insurmountable.

On Saturday Lynda Chavez, a session panelist who was on the sub-committee of Richard Nixon's Sixteen Point plan mentioned how she was once a liberal Democrat, but now is a registered Republican.

In her discussion on conservatives and minorities Chavez said, "I think the Republican party can offer the American people a vision of hope, but hope is based on the American people's work effort, their desire to want to succeed and I think that is the center of conservatism."

She continued, "Many Americans are fed up with the fact that schools are being used as store houses and not institutions of higher learning, I think policies that divide people by race, really tarnish the meaning of conservatism, because that is not what it's all about. Minorities are more likely to vote conserva­tive as opposed to Democratic. The values that immigrants have, are usually the values and beliefs of conserva­tive Americans."

Finally she added, "When you label a person such as Mexican-American, African-American, or even Polish-American, that labeling process is what causes division between minorities."

Suffolk University's College Repub­lican Chairman Jim Pagano, who prepared and organized the Washing­ton retreat, hoped that the students who went to the conference got an exciting educational experience. "I wanted to give Suffolk students the opportunity to discover our American heritage, which fuels a primary two party country. I also felt that it was an appropriate time to see a vision turn into a reality, that is a Republican controlled Congress, the first time in over 40 years," Pagano stated.

"If we are going to be a part of this new era," Pagano continued, "it's important to bring the ideas and values home on a local level, so they can be passed to other students at Suff­olk. The conference provided an opportunity to achieve these goals and it will help students gain political experience, network and develop their ideology."

When asked how he thought the students felt about the Washington experience, Pagano said, "On an over­all level, I think the students were euphoric about this experience; many views were expressed and I think it's because there were many different opinions on a wide range of social issues... those who went on the trip really learned from each other."

On his final thoughts of the Wash­ington experience, Pagano added, "In viewing the historic sites, sitting at the GATT discussions in the Senate gallery, listening to Newt Gingrich, and attending conference sessions pertaining to political techn­ology, reinforced my belief that the students had a wonderful enlighten­ing experience."

When the sessions had ended, Suffolk students were able to con­verse with session lecturers, educa­tion leaders and other attendees. When asked what they had learned, the responses of the Suffolk students varied.

"I learned how students cooperated outside the life of academia," said Daniel Masse, Pre-Law Society President and attendee. "I learned about how the political beliefs of other students coincided with that of the Republican belief."

Naser Othman was more adma­tant in his belief. He described what he felt by saying, "I visited the White House as a Suffolk student, but next time, it will be as a government official."

Sawyer library announces new circulation policy

In December 1994, immediately following the end of the fall semes­ter, a new policy for checking out Sawyer Library books will begin:

Students may check out books for 28 days.

- If a book has not been returned after 28 days, an overdue notice will be sent to the borrower asking the borrower to return the books within 10 days from the date of the notice.

- If the borrower fails to return the books within 10 days, a second (and final) notice will be sent, billing the borrower $30.00 per book plus a handling fee of $5.00 per book. A copy of this notice will be sent to Student Accounts and the amount assessed added to the student's account.

- If the borrower subsequently re­turns the overdue book, the cost of the book, but not the handling fee, will be removed from the borrower's account.

- If a student wishes to borrow a book for another 28 days, he/she must bring the book to the Circula­tion Desk for renewal.

Any book is subject to recall after 14 days if it has been requested by another student.

COMING TO BENTLEY THIS SUMMER

EXPLORE A CAREER IN ACCOUNTING, AND TAKE HOME THIS MEMENTO.

The Bentley College Minority Scholars Summer Institute in Accountancy, Bentley College, a nationally-ranked business specialty school, is seeking applicants for a unique, all-expenses paid program. The program is designed to provide academically competitive minority students (sophomores and juniors) who have no prior accounting with a solid foundation in accounting principles. Upon completion, each participant will be given 3 undergraduate academic credits and a $2,000 stipend. This rigorous program runs from mid-June through July and involves a number of visits to corporations and firms, creating opportunities to develop mentor relationships. Deadline for applications is February 1, 1995 and space is limited. If you're interested, we urge you to send the coupon or call 1/800/442-3723 immediately.

Please send me more information and an application for Bentley College's Minority Scholars Summer Institute in Accountancy.

Fire in Bulger's offices

The State House was evacuated on Tuesday, December 7 due to a fire which had started in the offices of Senate President, William Bulger (D-South Boston) around 7 pm.

The fire, whose cause has yet to be confirmed, is suspected by Bulger to have been started by an overheated Christmas light in his office's Christmas tree.

RECYCLING

University Safety Officer Judy Scanlon noted that Khalili ordered many of the leaking bins removed. Schmidt also recalled that the usefulness of those bins in the past had been dependent on their liners not leaking.

Last year Ships worked with Stephen Hill, Director of Budget and Administration of Suffolk Law School, the university-wide committee in an effort to buy secure can bins with locks. Shipp recalled a March first deadline that was never met. Hill confirmed that recycling collection bins were bought for paper, but bins were not purchased for cans because of budget problems.

Hernandez also said that ABM was also looking into replacing the present can bins with bins that lock, but did not because of the expense.

The actual number of bins for collecting both paper and cans/bottles has declined since the original program began. According to the same SGA LUAC flyer, at its start there were 22 can and 25 paper collection bins on Suffolk's campus. Amy Poindexter, the former SGA chairperson and member of the 1993-1994 SGA environmental committee, estimated that there are about 15 cans bins on campus and was unsure of the amount of paper collection bins.

According to a letter dated February 20, from SGA member Tammi Cullen, at the time there were bins in many diverse locations around campus. This letter cited locations of both can and paper collection bins located on the floors in Archer, Fenton, Ridgeway, and Sawyer, and just paper bins in the Donahue building. Scanlon noted that paper bins are presently located in Fenton near Hancock Street, in the Donahue base- ment and in Sawyer near the loading dock.

Currently, Suffolk's recycling can bins are being opened, and the contents are being removed by the home- less. Poindexter and Hernandez cited this as a major problem. Shipp also noted speaking to the former Physical Plant Department director about the cans being left in clear, plastic bags and on the issue of their being stolen. As part of their contract ABM workers still place the collection bins located on the floors in Archer, Fenton, Ridgeway, and Sawyer, and just paper bins in the Donahue building.

Sansevero also noted that paper collection bins were bought for paper since the first priority on-going pick-ups, and then can and bottle collection. Sansevero commented that the program would not be overnight and would be a “piece by piece process.”

Scanlon and Schmidt also noted the City of Boston’s newspaper recycling program and that they would like to have more of an effort recycling old issues of the Journal and Dixia. Scanlon also said that every year there were new proposals and so deterred the program, “Every year there were new proposals and so the main goal is starting from the bottom up. There has not been a set recycling program in the school.”

He also commented on how this deterred the program, “Every year there were new proposals and so deterred the program,” and added, “First of all the main goal is starting from the bottom up. There has not been a set recycling program in the school.”

The university-wide committee is planning to phase in the new plan for next year. Shipps also noted that this would not be overnight and would be a “piece by piece process.”

MELROSE MANIA!

"Melrose Place" Soundtrack a Must-have for Alternative Rock Fans

By Kristen Padios

SOUNDTRACK

For three seasons now, millions of 20-somethings tune in to the tube to tune out everything else to witness the latest happenings at the now-famous address. Die-hard fans of "Melrose Place" no doubt have noticed the addition of the catchy, more sophisticated background music.

In a brilliant marketing move, the powers-that-be compiled the tracks on to compact disc and the "Melrose Place" soundtrack was created.

This CD, while bringing more attention to the already talked about show, also brought some much-deserved national exposure to many of the artists, most notably being Boston's own Letters to Cleo.

Their new single, "Here and Now," has been played in heavy rotation on radio stations such as WFNX.

Alternative Rockers "Hole" Invade the Orpheum

By Kristen Padios

In 1994, the band Hole has enjoyed success and exposure never before associated with the group. Unfortunately, the tragic suicide of Nirvana's Kurt Cobain, husband of Hole front woman Courtney Love, and the heroin overdose death of Hole bassist Kristen Pfaff, brought attention to the once-obscure alternative music outfit.

These tragedies did nothing to slow the drive and ambition of Love and her bandmates, however, and after seeing Hole live one has to wonder why it took so long for them to receive the acclaim they deserve.

Sunday night, before a sold-out Orpheum crowd, Hole opened a rousing, rocking 90 minute set with "Plump," off their second album "Live Through This," said to be one of the best albums of 1994 by such esteemed music publications as Rolling Stone and Spin.

Love is backed by a supremely talented band, but it is definitely she that was the focus of this Boston appearance. Love exudes an amazing stage presence that allows her to connect with her audience.

Mindless Melrose Mania

By Justin Grieco

In honor of the popularity of the trashy prime-time soap "Melrose Place," the E & L section of the Suffolk Journal will be printing a recurring column entitled Mindless Melrose Mania.

The column will consist of the conversation of two avid "Melrose..." viewers and hopefully will be of use to fans who have missed the weekly episodes due to academic annoyances here at Suffolk!

For the rest of the Journal-reading masses at Suffolk, this column will hopefully serve as an entertaining battle-of-the-sexes with more disagreements and arguments than your average SGA meeting. So enjoy... and feel free to write in any comments you may have about this brilliant new column.

Drop Zone," new this weekend from Paramount Pictures, starring Wesley Snipes (right) and Malcolm-Jamal Warner.
under the age of 18 and con­
see officials felt otherwise.

While the material may not have been considered pornographic or obscene by California standards, Tennessee officials felt otherwise.

The source of the material was found guilty of know­ingly distributing sexually-explicit material to persons
under the age of 18 and conicted of transporting obscene materials across state lines.

After hearing of the case, Carnegie Mellon officials decided to pull the plug. Fearing a potential lawsuit from a parent whose child had access to the explicit pictures, CMU officials immediately decided to banish more than 80 “sex” Usenet newsgroups from the university.

“We’ve decided not to distribute some of the more obscene bulletin boards
trough the university,” said
Bill Arms, CMU’s vice president for computer services.

“We are not copying certain newsgroups to our system.”

Arms said the decision was based on Rimm’s research. “Previously, we weren’t aware of the amount of pornographic material available on the Internet,” he said, adding that he reviewed the pictures while checking Pennsylvania state laws on the distribution of explicit material. “But since so many others have access to our site, we felt we had to protect our­selves legally by keeping the materials off.”

But Mike Goodwin, an attorney for the Electronic Frontier Foundation, said he thinks the university would not have been held responsible if an unsuspecting mom found out where junior gets what he keeps on his hard drive.

“Even if the distinction was made for what is and isn’t obscene, which is difficult to prove, the school is simply providing the outlet,” he said. “They are not the provider of the material.”

Arms said CMU’s decision has left net users on campus up in arms. “People should have a right to access whatever material they want to,” said sophomore Robert Anders.

“CMU’s decision has left people who made this decision know nothing about a university’s leading role in the field. We’re backing down from our original commitment.”

More than 350 CMU students and faculty members attended the “Protest for Freedom in Cyberspace,” a campus rally held to protest the violation of what students called their First Amendment rights.

After the protest, CMU officials decided to leave the sex newsgroups intact, but still omitted the sex binary groups, those that contain codes that can be translated into pictures and movie clips.

And despite the protest, administrators are confident they made the right decision.

“About a few people have created a lot of publicity for something that most would think is essential for the academic good of the university,” said Arms. “Our service should be in line with our academic goals.”

McCallagh disagrees.

“You could say that sports teams aren’t in line with a university’s academic goals so that argument is misleading,” he said. “Besides, the purpose of a university is to create an environment where people are willing to accept the thoughts and ideas of others.”

The best compilation releases this season, however, lay in the early 80s. Rhino Records release of “Just Can’t Get Enough-New Wave Hits of The 80’s” covers over two hundred new wave hits over ten volumes, and features such classic tracks as “I Want Candy,” “Come On Eileen,” “Kids In America” and even the classic Moon
Unit Zappa single, “Valley Girl.”

These discs are a MUST for any fan of the early eighties music scene, as many of the tracks have been hard to find since the compact disc took hold of the music industry. “Just Can’t Get Enough” will leave you wanting more as you wallow in the pure innocence of the time.as Thomas Dolby, OMD, Duran Duran, Musical Youth and many others illustrate that the eighties may live on after all.

And don’t fret, Spring 1995 will see the release of five more volumes that will round out the “decade of decadance.” In the meantime,

(Warner Bros.), an album that suprises with its toned down acoustic approach; a strict departure from from their usual electric bombast. This album features “Sometimes Always,” the classic duet with Hope from Mazzy Star.

Also quite good is the new release from Magnapop, “Hot Boxing” (Priority Records). This foursome, led by Linda Hopper on vocals, delivers short, hooky guitar epics very reminiscent of Sugar and The Breeders (the album was produced by Sugar frontman, Bob Mould) that connect with raw intensity and honesty.

Check out “Slowly Slowly” and “Lay It Down” for some of the best female guitar rock released this year.

Somewhere polar left of Magnapop is Stereolab, a British foursome who aim to boggle the mind with their spacey guitar pop sound on “Mars Audiac Quintet” (Elektra). Already hitting airwaves with the catchy single “Ping Pong,” “Mars” recalls the past with slow, meandering guitar and organ, laced with classic moog synthesizer.

Laetitia Sadier’s slacker-ette vocal delivery keeps the tunes suspended somewhere between fantasy and reality. Check out “The Puppet Motel” where she takes a stab at our virtual reality-obsessed society to a throbbing synth beat. “Bright Red” is a classic disc that actually makes you think.

Take a four track, some distortion, a fair share of psychedelics, and a crude sense of humor and you have Ween, who continue their aural assault with “Chocolate and Cheese” (Elektra). This album, like its predecessors, “Pure Guava,” will make you laugh as it confounds the senses.

The guitar romp “I Can’t Put My Finger On It” and the groovy “Voodoo Lady” will have you hooked on first listen, and may make Ween one of the most welcome new releases of the season.

If this seasons new releases are not enough, the major labels have issued collections galore. It seems as though every major artist has a “Best of” released this season. As Sade, New Order, INXS, Red Hot Chili Peppers, The GoGos and even Donna Summer mine their catalogues one more time for your Christmas Deliar.

thanks to being featured almost weekly on “Melrose Place.” Their new-found fame has also led to an appearance on the “Jon Stewart Show.”

Another standout on the soundtrack to the sum Phillips song “Baby I Can’t Please You.” This follows her album released this past summer, “Martinis and Bikinis.” Phillips is finally starting to get some of the exposure she deserves after years of critical acclaim but little popular respect.

Aimee Mann, late of the Boston band Til Tuesday, scores another success with the tune “That’s Just What You Are.”

Overall, the “Melrose Place” soundtrack is a worthy addition to any alternative rock CD collection. With the previously mentioned tracks and many more by the likes of The Divinyls, Paul Westerberg, Dinosaur Jr., Urge Overkill, and many others, this is one soundtrack not to miss.

What's wrong with the Journal

The Suffolk Journal has come under a lot of fire this past semester, and the criticisms have not fallen on deaf ears.

Pretty much everything the Journal has done, or hasn't done, has been discussed and argued, praised and lambasted. Everything from articles we’ve done, articles people wanted us to do or wished we’d done, including editorials and opinion pieces by regular columnists Christian Engler, Mike Shaw and Jim Behrle, have been criticized.

The editorial staff at the Journal has heard these complaints, and even agreed with a good number of them.

No, the quality of the Journal is not where it could be, or even where it should be. There are many activities, events and happenings on campus we should have covered and didn’t; many important events have happened, and the Journal hasn’t been there.

While we acknowledge these deficiencies, it’s not for lack of trying.

Any regular reader of the Journal has probably noticed the almost regular house ads we’ve printed, letting people know we need their help, and encouraging them to come on down to the Journal and let their voices be heard.

While there are many people on the staff here whose help has been invaluable, there is always room down at the basement offices to accommodate a few more.

Some members of various Suffolk organizations and clubs have offered their help, sometimes donating an article or letting us know what has been happening in their organizations, and there have been times the articles didn’t appear in the paper, or the event went uncovered even after we’d heard about it.

As far as the lack of coverage, that stems from a simple lack of time and people down here to go to these events. With as small a staff as we have, the limits of time on all of us are more pronounced.

As to the submission of articles that we haven’t been able to use, some of that is due to the quality of the writing. The Journal tries to maintain a standard newswriting style, an unbiased and fair reporting of the events. When an organization submits a story on their own event, it is directed by students. This so-called ‘editorial board’ is meant to be a voice for the students, to help them publish articles on events they want us to do or wished we’d done. This is a big problem.

While the Journal is still a student-run newspaper, it is run by students. This so-called editorial board is meant to be a voice for the students, to help them publish articles on events they want us to do or wished we’d done. This is a big problem.

The Invasion of the 2.0 Club

Dear Editor,

It’s that time of year again, finals are upon us. With the closing of this semester, as with all others, a trek of great magnitude is about to occur. Of course, this is the annual migration to the library. Hundreds of Suffolk students, many for the first time, will overrun the Sawyer library. These first-timers, who have been transplanted from the riotous surroundings of the cafeteria, are about to venture into a new realm. This new experience generally carries amazement and confusion for what we commonly refer to as the 2.0 Club.

One of these cafeteria transplants was actually lost in the library and was locked in overnight. When he was discovered the following morning, looking at pictures in the Herald, he was quoted as having had difficulty reading the Exit signs. This may explain why the 2.0 Club constantly speaks on the lower levels of the library, where silence is asked to be maintained out of respect for other students.

Unfortunately, the tranquility will continue on page 10

Making Suffolk a better place

Dear Editor,

Suffolk’s educational and social programs have proved their worth throughout the years. However, more could be done in both domains. It would be unwise to stagnate at the present accomplishments. In order to avoid stagnation, a need for transcendence arises. This calls for the creation of innovative programs and activities.

At the educational level, new departments should be created if the need arises. At the social level, novel entertainment events should be promoted. These events should include all sorts of shows performed and directed by students. This social aspect of a students life should not be neglected for it plays an important role in the Suffolk Journal asks that all Letters to the Editor be submitted on the Friday before publication, and should be typed if possible. The Suffolk Journal will not print any letters that are not signed.

One of these cafeteria transplants was actually lost in the library and was locked in overnight. When he was discovered the following morning, looking at pictures in the Herald, he was quoted as having had difficulty reading the Exit signs. This may explain why the 2.0 Club constantly speaks on the lower levels of the library, where silence is asked to be maintained out of respect for other students.

Unfortunately, the tranquility will continue on page 10

Making Suffolk a better place

Dear Editor,

Suffolk’s educational and social programs have proved their worth throughout the years. However, more could be done in both domains. It would be unwise to stagnate at the present accomplishments. In order to avoid stagnation, a need for transcendence arises. This calls for the creation of innovative programs and activities.

At the educational level, new departments should be created if the need arises. At the social level, novel entertainment events should be promoted. These events should include all sorts of shows performed and directed by students. This social aspect of a students life should not be neglected for it plays an important role in the Suffolk Journal asks that all Letters to the Editor be submitted on the Friday before publication, and should be typed if possible. The Suffolk Journal will not print any letters that are not signed.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"Suffolk students are stupid morons."

"At least we don't write on bathroom walls!"

- Anonymous students, written on the bathroom wall in the first floor men's room in the Fenton building.
Pointless change

Mike Shaw

Well, it is almost officially 1995 and the nineties are half over. I'll bet that every Generation "X"-er out there is wondering what the hell happened to the past five years, and every Baby Boomer is wondering what happened to the past thirty. Last week, Jerry Rubin died; and with him went one of the loudest voices of the sixties. His contributions to society were monumental, and helped to change the course of our nation's history. He was a great man, and will be sorely missed by all of those whose lives he touched.

The key word here being WAS. He is dead.

Jerry Rubin was a member of the Baby Boomers' Generation, and his death is an omen. Just as people tend to dwell on the most superficial things; the gross and needs really different? It seems that the youth have always wanted the same.

And those are just the most superficial things; the popular ideologies that people tend to dwell on uselessly. Are the basic values and needs really different? It seems that the youth have always wanted the same things. We have always wanted to change the world; to reinvent our respective societies. We all have wanted to make a difference. We look up at our parents and see bloated, out of touch, ultra-conservative, and utterly stu-pid adults. And we swear that we will never be like them. Ever.

Regardless, just as the Baby Boomers are now the stupid adults, so will we one day.

It's the end of the world as we know it, says Jim

Jim Behrle

I was in the shower the other day, drinking a six pack of Mighty Morphin Power Ranger Lager, when God appeared in a big flash of smoke.

Being an atheist, this came as a shock. The thing was, I lost the bet I had with my father. Dad, I'll mail you the $20.

Jim, what did God want, you ask? Let's just say the Almighty was pissed off.

Since we humans have pretty much tossed the Ten Commandments out the window, God said to me that he decided to end the world.

This, too, was a shock. I always figured that the world would end about the same time that that 'Brady Bunch' motion picture was released. But, no. It's really happening. The Rapture. The Apocalypse. The Rapture.

God said he was going to end the world on Saturday night.

It was then that I started to cry like a little girl. I begged and pleaded. "Please, God," I said. "Have mercy! Please! I have Nine Inch Nails tickets Saturday! Can't you punish humanity some other night?"

At first God wasn't gonna budge, but after about seven Mighty Morphin Power Ranger Lagers, he relented. "You have a week," he said. Then he turned into a space shuttle and rocketed through my skylight.

I stood there, with Head and Shoulders burning my eyes, amazed. The entire world only has one week left. Seven days. This is kind of a disturbing thing, when you think about it. I mean, I had big plans with my life. I was looking forward to falling in love, having kids, getting a dog and a cd player; ending up divorced, having my kids hate me, having the dog eat my cd player. None of these dreams were going to come true.

Yes, it's a fact. You don't make any plans past December 10, 1994. Did you buy a 1995 calendar? Bring it back quick and get some booze instead. Are you busy studying for next week's finals? Drop what you're doing and proceed to the Red Hat (now open 24 hours, for your Armageddon convenience). Do you still owe a couple of papers to various professors? We'll think about it. I mean, I just don't make any frigging difference.

We're all gonna live about as long as American disco fever. Let's just say the Rapture. The Apocalypse. The Rapture.

Then it hit me: I'll never graduate from college! None of us here ever will! We've wasted the last 20 years of our lives in school; snoozing through lectures, blowing off classes, and making excuses for not doing papers. I've been robbed, man! Suffolk has taken away my life! The bastards!

I say the Financial Aid Department better start making out some checks. Every student here at Suffolk better get all their tuition back, with a personalized letter from President Sargent saying, "Sorry for wasting your time. We had no idea the world was going to end."

The worst thing is, though, is that I'm going to Hell. I mean, that's a given. I'm going to be burning in Hell, wishing I had spent more time sleeping, using drugs, and drinking Fresca.

Are you curious about whether you, too, are going to Hell? Here's my "Am I going to Hell?" checklist: Have you had sex with someone you were not married to? Have you thought about having sex? Have you murdered? Have you written a letter to "Ask Pat"? I actually did what "Ask Pat" told me to do. Have you seen more than one episode of "Melrose Place"? I've coveted my neighbor's stuff. I have thought about coveting. I drink Fresca, knowing full well that it is made from the blood of Lucifer. I have lied, cheated, and stolen (and that was just to get into law school). I have purchased a Pearl Jam cd.

I have thought about purchasing a Pearl Jam cd.

Well, that pretty much covers most of America. See you all in the big Hi-E-double hockey sticks, folks!!

So I sit here, in front of this keyboard, trying to think.

of the best advice I can give the world is on how to spend your waking hours. I'd like to say that we all should use our precious time praying and repenting, but it's too late. Damnation looms, honey! We're going to get bar-b-que'd like yesterday's fish. Our fate is cast, baby! Humanity is going to be spending some quality time with Nosferatu, being boiled in bile and wondering if we could have screwed things up a little more. Come to think of it, gorillas could have built a better society than us. Haven't you seen "Planet of the Apes"? If we had spent a lot less time shooting each other, we'd probably have invented all that cool futuristic stuff on those AT&T commercials and have already built car washes on Pluto. Alas, we humans are stinky. Good riddance, baby! My advice? Grab the closest loved one and start hugging. Love is all you need. She loves you yeah yeah yeah. Love, love me do. Jesus said that.

Love is the opiate of the people, ain't it? I mean, love will bridge the gap, clean your teeth, throw the Republicans out of Congress, heal the sick, teach the stupid, win the World Series and kill roaches dead.

I guess all I really needed to know I did learn in Kindergarten (except that oral pleasure thing). Armageddon has made me think about a lot of things folks. I have seen my soul and realized that it needs new batteries.

Truth is, spend your last few hours however you like. I could care less. I'm gonna be a little busy, searching for the perfect Twinkie high.

God have mercy on your souls, Sufffolkians!

THE USED TEXTBOOK PROGRAM

In order to explain in greater detail how a Used Textbook Program works, the following is a list of questions most frequently asked about the purchase and sale of used textbooks.

Why are textbooks so expensive?
Expensive is a relative term, and since a book is a commodity it will reflect market forces. For instance, a weakening dollar, the deficit, higher oil prices, etc. will be reflected in the cost of a commodity (book). Subject matter for the most part will determine the price of a book. For instance, hard sciences, such as chemistry, requiring charts, graphs, color illustrations, etc. are more costly to produce. A novel, is less expensive to produce.

Are faculty members concerned about book prices?
Yes. In general, faculty members select those books which give the best value for the content of the course, while keeping price in mind. This is why it is equally important that the faculty understand the Used Textbook Program.

Is the Used Textbook Program a cooperative effort?
Yes it is. A well run college bookstore will buy back from its own students before going to a used book wholesaler. Along with their desire to save money, the students must be willing to make the time and effort to sell back their books. If the bookstore has a good working relationship with the faculty and department coordinators, faculty members will try to get their book orders in on time. If the bookstore has timely information it can offer better buy-back prices and in turn offer better selling prices to the students at the start of the new semester. Students - Faculty - Bookstore!

How much will the bookstore pay for a used book?
As much as 50% of the new book selling price, if the book is used but not abused, or excessively hit-lited.

How much will the bookstore pay for a book that was purchased used?
Again, as much as 50% of the new book selling price, if the book is used but not abused or excessively hit-lited.

Will the bookstore pay 50% for all used books?
No. The bookstore will pay 50% only for those books which the faculty has placed a written book order with the bookstore for the upcoming Fall or Spring Semester.

Is it to a student's advantage to buy a USED book?
Yes, it is. In many cases a student may save as much as 75% of the price of a new book, simply by buying used and then reselling the used book at the end of the term.
Exchange Student Files $1 Million Suit Against College

By Erin L. Delude
The Equinox
KEENE, N.H. (CPS) — A former Keene State College student is suing the school for $1 million, saying the school’s negligence led to her rape while she was a foreign exchange student in Ecuador.

Rebecca Duclos filed suit against KSC and the state university system on Sept. 29 in U.S. District Court in Concord. Duclos says the college’s exchange program put her at risk with an unsafe host family in Quito, Ecuador.

The representative, Maria de Espinosa, did not offer counseling and insisted Duclos keep living with the family, according to the suit.

Duclos decided to leave Ecuador in November and says that upon her return, KSC officials were not helpful. According to her suit, she went to Michael Haines, KSC dean to foreign affairs study and he told her she should have stayed in Ecuador to finish her academic credits.

However, USNH attorney Ron Rodgers said that after learning of Duclos’ allegations, KSC officials offered, on at least three occasions, to help her obtain counseling. Each time, Duclos declined the offer and said she would seek counseling at home in Philadelphia, according to Rodgers.

Keene State students have participated in the exchange program with the Catholic University of Ecuador for several years without incidents of assault or abuse having occurred, Rodgers said.

Host families are screened by the Catholic University of Ecuador before student placements are made. Duclos was originally placed with a family who spoke mostly Spanish. However, after the semester began, Duclos requested a reassignment and was placed with the family mentioned in the suit, said Rodgers.

Rodgers added that the complaint is being reviewed and that Keene State will file a response in the next few weeks.

“KSC acted prudently in establishing and conducting the exchange program with the Catholic University of Ecuador,” Rodgers said. “Keene State officials also acted appropriately and with compassion toward Duclos after she made known her complaint.”

USED BOOKS ARE THE SINGLE MOST EFFECTIVE WAY FOR A COLLEGE STUDENT TO REDUCE THE COST OF BOOKS AND AT THE SAME TIME RECYCLE A PAPER PRODUCT!

But how does a student save 75% of the price of a new book?

USED BOOKS sell for approximately 25% less than a new book, then if the book is being adopted again, the bookstore will buy it back at 50% of the current new selling price. This becomes a 75% savings to the student.

For Example:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>New Price</th>
<th>$40.00</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Less 50% at Buy-Back</td>
<td>($20.00)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Actual Price to Student</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Used Price</td>
<td>$30.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Does saving 75% hold true in all instances?

No. It does not. In some cases, a new edition is coming out, or the bookstore has not yet received an order for the title, it is a one semester course, enrollment drops, etc.

Is saving a student 75% a sought after goal?

Yes it is. But, remember, the bookstore does not dictate text selections to the faculty. Again, textbooks are selected on the basis of value to the course. However, in many colleges, faculty members try to adopt a text for at least two years. This increases the chances of saving 75% of the new price of a textbook.

What will the bookstore pay for books NOT being adopted for the next coming term?

Each month the used book wholesalers publish a buying guide with the most current prices available. The bookstore will pay whatever value the wholesaler is offering.

How much is that?

Anywhere from nothing to about 25% of the new selling price.

Why so little?

There are many factors involved. Since the wholesaler has no control over how many books will arrive in their warehouse, prices are kept low. Wholesalers offer nothing if a new edition is coming out, the market for a particular title is small, or if the title has simply stagnated and has lost its resale value.

How does the bookstore and faculty benefit by the Used Textbook Program?

By offering very substantial savings to the students who are the ultimate “customers” of both the bookstore and the school.

I think one of the secrets of a contented life is obvious... plan your time, your month or, your week so that you are occupied by things you find delightful... even if it’s quiet and you’re alone.

For instance... on Mondays, have a nice dinner with friends.

Tuesdays- watch your favorite t.v. show with a tasty snack.

Wednesdays- do a home improvement job or clean something which you’ve always cherished.

Thursdays- sit in the dark alone for hours.

Fridays- go to a local lovely natural setting...like a lake or mountain.

Saturdays- do something athletic which pushes you to a new limit.

 Sundays- sit alone again in the dark until you cry.

Student President Goes on Hunger Strike

By Marco Buscaglia
College Press Service
MILWAUKEE, Wis. — University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee student Robert Miranda was getting tired of paying higher tuition each year. And when he realized that state legislators weren’t giving much consideration to the issue, Miranda decided to skip a few meals to get some attention.

Miranda, UW’s student government president, began a hunger strike on Oct. 20 to protest the increasing costs of education. The 32-year-old junior announced that he would drink only fruit juice and water until state officials launched an investigation into the cause of the annual hike in tuition at Wisconsin state universities.

“I wanted to send a message out and the only way I could get the attention of the media and government was to hold a hunger strike,” said Miranda. “We were able to get some attention when we held a protest at the state capital in Madison, but we still weren’t getting the coverage we thought the issue deserved.”

Miranda said he and several other students at UW feel that inflation has little to do with the ever-escalating cost of higher education. Instead, the students blame misplaced priorities from federal officials and university administrators who wish to place more emphasis on corporate investment than education.

“The primary role of the public university should not be to help private businesses make more money,” said Miranda. “We’re not just talking about the costs of education, but the integrity of the entire system.”

Miranda said he believes that increasing costs at universities can be traced back to the Bayh-Dole Act, a piece of 1980 federal legislation that is also known as the University-Small Business Patent Act.

The Bayh-Dole Act allows universities to contract research with the aid of grants from private companies. The schools then sell exclusive licenses on all discoveries they make to the sponsoring company. This not only saves businesses sizable dollars by letting someone else do the research but earns them extensive tax credits for investing in university research.

The theory that the Bayh-Dole Act helped drive higher education costs through the roof was originated by the National Coalition for Universities in the Public Interest, an education reform organization founded by Ralph Nader and Leonard Minksy in 1983. Miranda said that after the act was signed into law, universities across the nation immediately raised tuition to help fund their new opportunities in research.

“If a school was actively pursuing corporate dollar to do research, they had to upgrade their facilities to industry standards,” said Miranda, who is majoring in criminal justice. “Then they went out and hired high-cost researchers with impressive credentials with no intention of ever putting them in a classroom in front of students. The emphasis shifted from education to research, and the students paid the price.”

David Merkowitz, spokesperson for the American Council on Education, said that he has heard the Bayh-Dole Act theory before, but feels there are more tangible factors for the increase in tuition costs.

“The share of money for higher education from most state budgets has dropped significantly,” he said. “And given the fact that universities have to offer more than ever before to attract students, the need for money is even more pronounced.”

And while Miranda is convinced that the Bayh-Dole legislation is to blame for rising college costs, he said he went on a hunger strike to bring attention to the entire problem.

“No one can deny how quickly tuition costs went up,” said the Chicago native. “What we want the state legislators to do is study the problem. If we’re wrong, that’s fine. But there’s a reason costs are so high, and we need to identify it so we can do something about it.”

On Nov. 4, two weeks into his hunger strike, Miranda received word that his concerns would be addressed.

“Some state legislators came to our office, read our material and promised us they’d look into it,” said Miranda, adding that after the initial hunger pains went away, he had no physical problems during his 14-day fast except for occasionally feeling light-headed. “The ball is in their court now.”

“I’ve had tremendous support from the students, and I would think that the elected officials will take that into consideration. We hope that some answers to our questions come soon.”

RESEARCH STUDY ON BULIMIA

FEMALE VOLUNTEERS who are currently bulimic, age 18-45, in good medical health and not taking medications (including oral contraceptives), are sought for a study being conducted by the Beth Israel Hospital Psychiatry Research Unit.

Eligible participants will receive $60 for the screening visit and an additional $125 for each of two overnight stays at the Clinical Research Unit for a study on the effects of amino acids on blood tests and psychological ratings.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Call Christina Wood, Psychiatry Research Unit, Beth Israel Hospital, Boston, at (617) 735-2113.
"If you'd let me finish, it is easier to feel sorry for someone that is in a more realistic situation, no matter how whiny their character may be. We also cannot dismiss the fact that Allison once dated obnoxious Billy Campbell for too long."

"Now we're getting into those male double standards here. Now, I will admit Billy is not the brightest on the show, but he is good to look at. AND, I do have to correct you, it was he that had the misfortune of dealing with Allison for far too long. To think he almost married that overly-neurotic, extremely transparent bundle of nerves. Let her drink herself into a stupor, maybe she'll finally be entertaining! But I know all the males out there think she looks so good that makes her worthy of sympathy."

"Kristen, my dear, I am a sick person? Is that so? I do not believe I am one of the one getting twisted enjoyment off of one person's alcoholism, but to add to that statement, it Allison was in a drunken stupor and beating Billy, Susan, and Jo over the head with a baseball bat, now that would be entertaining."

"Like I said he is sick! I am not getting pleasure from her so-called problem...but I must say no one forced the bottle to her lips...I merely enjoy watching the little twit squirm in her neurotic little way!"

"OK, OK...can we at least agree that Sydney, Jane, and Chris deserve everything they get, each other, and so much more?"

"Yes, it kills me to admit it but I do agree with you on that point. I do have to say, though that Sydney's antics have been quite enjoyable this season, don't you think?"

"Yes, but both Jane and Sydney seem less suited to a fashion company than a prostitution ring. The two of them are a warped ad campaign for promiscuity."

"So eloquently put Justin, but let's just say it like it is...they are stupid sluts!"

"That they are, so until the next episode let us both get our brains in working order once again."

"Yes, this week we have a break...'90210' will not be seen tonight!"

but do we know who these alleged "little people" are? Probably not. So, in the interest of opening people's eyes to the true victims of this "labor" dispute, I will introduce you all to an average vendor at Fenway Park. At his own request, I will call him "Joe Vendor".

Suffolk Journal: Joe, when did you first become a vendor?

Joe Vendor: I started working at Fenway Park during the summer between my freshman and sophomore year at high school.

SJ: And how did you view this job?

JV: At first, I saw it as a way to get into a professional ballgame for free any day that I wanted to, and as a way to make a little extra money.

SJ: Have you always seen your job as that, or has your view of it changed?

JV: Well, in the past two years, as I started moving up on the ladder at the ballpark, I began to see that some of the older guys were making, in some cases, over one hundred dollars a game. Then, about halfway through last season, I started taking the job more seriously. I knew that I could help my parents pay for my impending college tuition if I started saving.

SJ: So now you're all set, right? I mean, you must be pretty comfortable if you were making one hundred dollars a game.

JV: Well, that's the thing. I'm not making that much all the time. Remember, there are only eighty or so games played at Fenway each year, and I don't even have to work every one of them. I only have to work thirty. Plus, I'm not exactly a ten-year veteran of the stands, either. I'm just now starting to sell what we call the "middle products"; things like ice cream and "Powerade".

Then you have to consider the weather, the pace of the game, the mood of the crowd, things like that. It's not always easy, and I'm not always pulling in huge sums of money.

SJ: So how much do you make?

JV: I really only started keeping track last year because that's when I started working might games. Up until then I had been working only on the weekends. But as for money, I made an average of $32.50 after taxes through 42 games.

This year I was making an average of $37.56 a game

When the strike started, and I had still only worked 33 games! When you do the math you see that, had I stayed on the same pace as I did last year, I was robbed of at least a couple hundred dollars. And to make matters worse I was on a pace to have worked over fifty games.

That translates into almost a thousand dollars!

SJ: So what happened to all of the money that you made before the strike?

JV: Well, I actually planned my year out pretty well, and decided that through July, I would treat myself to a few things that I wanted. I bought a computer, and a few games to go with it. I added to my collection of tapes and CD's, and I saw all of the movies that I wanted to see. Then I took a trip with a friend of mine just before the strike. I honestly didn't think that they would go through with it. I always expected to be working when I got back from my trip.

However, just as I was going to finish up the last third of the season, and earn my book and traveling money, the [expletive]-heads went on strike.

SJ: You seem pretty bitter about that.

JV: I am. I was all set to earn enough money for books and T-passes for the year, not to mention helping my parents pay the tuition here. I just don't see the logic in throwing so many people's lives into utter chaos so that millionaires on both sides of the issue can argue over how many more millions they should all be earning. Hell, all I, and lots of the other vendors at the park, are trying to do is put ourselves through the school. It just isn't fair.

No, it isn't fair. And Joe is just one of the thousands of people across the country who have been forgotten in the shuffle of politics, the media, and the losses of the World Series.

God help the poor souls who work for the NHL.

Rams head towards break on a winning note

Suffolk concluded the first two weeks of the 1994-95 season riding the crest of a win streak, to up their record to 3-4.

In a Saturday night 92-72 defeat of Roger Williams College, forward Rick Ace nearly dismantled the Psalino Center, never mind his opponent's futile attempts at player defense. In 35 minutes of action, Ace tallied a career-high 37 points, while shooting an ungodly 71% from the floor.

"Rick was just spectacular," Head Coach Jim Nelson said with a bit of understatement. "It was his finest performance of the season."

Despite Ace's theatrics though, the game was far from a solo performance. Guard Chris Toglia was strongly supportive, scoring 10, and dishing out 6 assists in a game high 37 minutes. From the bench, Dave McLaren poured in 22 to pair with his 6 rebounds, while freshman Ed Hurley racked up 5 points and 7 boards in over a dozen minutes of play.

From the onset and throughout, the contest appeared to be one of a competitive nature. At the half, the two universities were knotted in a 32-32 tie. Then Coach Nelson altered his game plans, and the Rams responded near frighteningly.

With a 3-2 defensive zone to tilt under, allowing for more fast breaks and better opportunities for rebounds, Suffolk exploded with a 60-point second half that sealed the game's outcome. "It was an exciting win," Coach Nelson said simply. "A very exciting win."

Last Thursday, the Rams squeaked by Salve Regina University in the Ridgeway Gym 79-76. Stellar performances were turned in by center Mike Vieira who cracked out 21 points and hauled in 13 rebounds, and Nazarene College. For Head Coach Ed Leyden it was his squad's best performance of the young season.

"That game has been the bright spot of the year. We were able to successfully stand up to their (Eastern Nazarene) last minute charge. Offensively we were at our best."

Earlier in the week, Suffolk had battled Simmons College (11/30) in an affair that was back-and-forth scoring wise all evening. In the end, though, it was several key turnovers late in the game that proved to be the Lady Rams' bane.

This, after Suffolk shot to an 8-0 advantage in the game's onset and held a 22-17 lead at halftime. "Anyone could have won that game," Coach Leyden surmised. "We lost, but I'm still very happy with how my players performed."

Monday night (12/5), Suffolk fell to Curry College 65-51, their lowest point total of the season. "It was ill-fated from the beginning," the head coach stated. "They played well and we played poor. That's it."

The Lady Rams snapped a two-game losing streak Saturday evening (12/3) with a 59-51 defeat of Eastern Nazarene College. For Head Coach Ed Leyden it was his squad's best performance of the young season.

Before they recess for a month, the Lady Rams travel to play Wensworth College on Thursday. Their final game of the 1994 year is at home versus Endicott College Saturday evening.

Intramural basketball notes: Last year's champion teams, the Studs, currently known by the moniker Back 2 Back, were the pre-season favorites to repeat, yet have already been upset by the Mutts 56-43.

This season's favorites to take the scoring title are Sal DeAngelis (Back 2 Back), Dave Pennypacker (Gamecocks), and Brian Sacco (Mavericks). Currently there is a three-team jam at the helm of the standings, with the Mutts, the Gamecocks, and the Mavericks all holding a piece of first place...A tip of the hat to Chuck Byrne, a graduate assistant at the Athletic Department. Byrne, a four-year star for the men's basketball team, will be covering after the conclusion of the season....

Happy Holidays to Coach Jim Nelson, Coach Joe Walch, and the rest of the athletic department. Thanks for all your help during the semester....
