
Follow this and additional works at: https://dc.suffolk.edu/journal

Recommended Citation

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Suffolk University Student Newspapers at Digital Collections @ Suffolk. It has been accepted for inclusion in Suffolk Journal by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Suffolk. For more information, please contact dct@suffolk.edu.
A Great Chance To Meet New People!!

FRATERNITY AND SORORITY OPEN HOUSE

Tuesday, Sept. 24th and
Thursday, Sept. 26th
1:00 PM – 2:30 PM
Ridgeway Lounge
APO - PAT - Phi Sig
Gamma Sig - TKE - Delta
Everyone Welcome

A Great Chance To Meet New People!!

Suffolk women offer perspectives on Nairobi

by John Mudders

Last June, 1,000 women arrived in Nairobi for the University of Nairobi's annual conference. This year, there will be 12,000 women. The conference, called "Women Build," is the largest of its kind in the world.

The conference is organized by the Peponi Foundation, a non-profit organization that works to improve the lives of women and girls in Kenya.

The conference will be held from July 10 to 13 and will feature presentations on topics such as gender equality, economic empowerment, and health.

The conference is open to women from all over the world, and there is a fee of $500 to attend.

The conference is supported by a number of organizations, including the United Nations, the World Bank, and the Ford Foundation.

The conference is expected to draw a large number of attendees, and the organizers are excited about the opportunity to share knowledge and build connections.

This is the second year that the conference has been held, and the organizers are looking forward to seeing how it has grown over the years.

The conference is a great opportunity for women to learn from each other and to work towards a more just and equal world.
Clark honors black writers

by Dorothy Perry

TUESDAY. OCT. 1. 1985
Meetings 1:00-2:30 pm
Poly Sci
S421
SQA
S423
Poly Sci. Elcctronic
S426
Cemny Planning Workshop
S427
Debta Sutnpna
S430
Meno Basketball Meeting
S544
Newspapers Club
S6029
Lounge 1-2:30
S734
THURSDAY. OCT. 3. 1985
American Political Rights
S401
Meetings 1:00-2:30 pm
Poly Sci
S421
SQA
S423
Poly Sci. Elcctronic
S426
Cemny Planning Workshop
S427
Debta Sutnpna
S430
Meno Basketball Meeting
S544
Newspapers Club
S6029
Lounge 1-2:30
S734

SIDETRACKS

Learning to recognize your rights

by Linda Fedwits

A sudden new wave of Quinnipiac student protests erupted on Oct. 1. when the administration announced that student writing groups would be required to submit new proposals for the upcoming year. The move came as a surprise to many students, who have been accustomed to the traditional freedom of expression enjoyed at a large university.

Many students expressed concern about the implications of the new policy. "I'm worried about how this will affect our ability to express ourselves publicly," said one student. "I don't want to have to get approval for every piece we publish." Others voiced fears that the new policy could lead to censorship and limit free speech on campus.

In response to these concerns, the administration has stated that the new policy is designed to ensure the quality and diversity of student publications. "We want to make sure that all voices are represented," said one administrator. "This is not about限制 speech, but rather about ensuring that our publications reflect the broader campus community."

Despite these assurances, many students remain skeptical. "I don't trust the administration," said one student. "They've done this before, and they always manage to find some reason to limit our freedom." Others have also expressed concern about the potential for the policy to be used as a tool to suppress dissent.

The administration has acknowledged the potential for such concerns, but has emphasized the importance of open dialogue and a commitment to free speech. "We want to create an environment where students feel free to express their ideas," said one administrator. "We'll work with everyone to ensure that this policy is implemented in a way that respects freedom of expression and the diverse perspectives on campus."

As the debate continues, students and administrators alike are looking to find a way to balance the need for quality and diversity with the importance of free speech. "We're committed to finding a solution that ensures both," said one administrator. "We'll continue to listen and learn as we work together to develop a policy that works for everyone."

Chowderheads dig clams on the Common

by Sandy Peck

A bountiful harvest of quahog clams and oysters along the shore of Boston Harbor has led many to believe that the clam and oyster diggers could start digging off the Common. However, the Town Council has voted to keep the Common closed to diggers until further notice.

The clam and oyster diggers have been digging on the Common for years, taking advantage of the rich clam beds along the shore. But the Town Council has decided to keep the Common closed in order to protect the clam beds and ensure their sustainability.

The clam diggers have expressed frustration with the decision, arguing that the clam beds are a natural resource that should be preserved. "We've always dug on the Common," said one digger. "Now we can't even go out and dig for a living."

Others, however, have praised the decision, citing the need to protect the clam beds for future generations. "We don't want to see the clam beds destroyed," said one resident. "We need to work together to ensure that they're preserved for future generations."

As the clam diggers continue to grapple with the decision, the debate over the future of clam and oyster digging on the Common rages on. "We'll continue to work with everyone to find a solution that works for everyone," said one representative of the Town Council. "We need to find a way to balance the needs of the clam diggers with the need to protect the clam beds and the environment."
ARTS

Plenty leaves you feeling empty

Sophomore Accounting

Peter O'Toole inspires Creator

MUSIC

Ready Boston? It's BEAT Aid

The Student Angle

Peter O'Toole and Raiti Headway

Peter O'Toole and Raiti Headway

782-ROCK

The The

The Vietnam Rock and Roll Music Resource Center have proposed a series of using music on trial content. Records with sexual and sexual content and romance are to be played in the courtroom.

Peter O'Toole and Raiti Headway

Peter O'Toole and Raiti Headway

The The

The Vietnam Rock and Roll Music Resource Center have proposed a series of using music on trial content. Records with sexual and sexual content and romance are to be played in the courtroom.
SPORTS

Soccer team looks to the future

By Mike Oechsner

VARSITY MEN'S SOCCER

Remaining Schedule

Last Sat. Aug 29 - City College
Mon. Sept 10 - Mount St. Mary's State
Wed. Oct 2 - Purchase College
Sat. Oct 5 - Farmingdale State (home)
Mon. Oct 8 - Farmingdale State
Wed. Oct 11 - Farmingdale State
Mon. Oct 18 - Farmingdale State
Wed. Oct 21 - Farmingdale State
Mon. Oct 28 - Farmingdale State
Wed. Oct 31 - Farmingdale State

Golf team tees off

By Charles J. St. Winter

The golf team tees off for the Spring season this weekend and all members of the team are excited about the season. The team consists of five members: seniors Michael Murphy, John Pendergast, and John O'Reilly; junior Paul Robichaud; and sophomore William Murphy. The team's main goal is to improve its team average and qualify for the State Championship. The team has been practicing every day and has been working hard to get ready for the season. The spring season is a great opportunity for the team to compete and improve their skills. The team is looking forward to playing against some tough competition and challenging themselves to be the best they can be. The team's coach, Mr. John Smith, is also excited about the season and is looking forward to seeing the team's progress. The team will be playing against some top teams and will be challenged to do their best. The team is motivated and determined to achieve their goals and has been working hard to get ready for the season. The team's next tournament is scheduled for the end of the month and they are looking forward to doing well. The team is confident and looking forward to a successful season.
Bruins take the ice

NFL picks for the week