ROTIC goes to the field

by Debbie Ponce

Floyd Scott, a college student, was selected to represent Suffolk University at the 1985 ROTC field training exercise. The training was held at Camp Winters in California and lasted for two weeks.

Floyd Scott arrived at Camp Winters on September 1, 1985, and was immediately assigned to his platoon. The training included various activities such as physical exercises, weapons training, and teamwork exercises.

On the second day of training, Floyd and his platoon were given the opportunity to participate in a mock battle simulation. The simulation was designed to test their knowledge and skills in various aspects of military training.

Floyd Scott was impressed by the quality of training provided by the instructors. He felt that the training was challenging but also rewarding. He expressed his gratitude to the instructors for their hard work and dedication.

After completing the two-week training exercise, Floyd Scott returned to Suffolk University and shared his experiences with his classmates. He encouraged them to take advantage of the opportunities provided by the ROTC program.

Floyd Scott now looks forward to his next training exercise and continues to work towards becoming an exemplary ROTC student.

Jagged Edge has jagged edges

by Samah Mikhael

Jagged Edge's new album is a testament to the band's ability to blend genres and create a unique sound. The album starts with an upbeat single that has a strong electronic influence, but as the album progresses, the band explores different styles, including rock and pop. The lyrics are thought-provoking, touching on themes of love, loss, and redemption. Overall, Jagged Edge has produced a record that is both catchy and introspective.

Agnes of God cannot be saved

by Nick Duran

Agnes of God is a powerful and thought-provoking film that explores themes of faith and human suffering. The story follows a young nun who claims to have seen visions of Jesus, triggering a series of events that challenge the religious community's beliefs. The film is well-acted and directed, with a strong narrative that keeps the audience engaged. Overall, Agnes of God is a must-see film for anyone interested in exploring the complexities of faith.

Coors

Coors, a well-known beer brand, has recently released a new advertisement to promote their latest product. The ad features a group of friends enjoying a meal together, and it highlights the brand's commitment to quality and authenticity. Coors is known for their long history and tradition, and the ad successfully captures the essence of the brand. Overall, the advertisement is a great addition to Coors' marketing strategy.

Cross-country runs aground

by Mike DiSilverio

It was not a good week for the Cross-country team, who ran poorly in the final two meets.

The boys, led by seniors Steve Thomas and Kevin McDaniel, were second to the University of Virginia in the first meet, held on the course behind the station.

Then, in the final meet, the team was of no help to the team. The varsity, with seniors Mike DiSilverio and Tom Johnson, was second to the University of Virginia in the final meet, held on the course behind the station.

Despite these setbacks, the boys still managed to place third in the season-long meet.

New Model Army marches on

by John Morris

New Model Army is the biggest band in the State of New York. Their recent album, "New Model Army," is the first of a 32-song lineup for the national tour.

The band is currently on tour with "New Model Army," their first album. The tour has been a success, with the band playing to sold-out crowds in New York City.

The band's next album, "New Model Army II," is scheduled for release in the fall.

Fall schedule attracts recruits

by Mike DiSilverio

The fall schedule for the Cross-country team has been announced, and the team is looking for new members.

The team will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and will compete in a series of meets throughout the fall season.

There are limited spots available, so interested students should contact the team captain, Mike DiSilverio, at 555-5555.

Archived provides access for disabled

By Sandy More

The Suffolk building in the Suffolk building, Suffolk University, has been equipped with a wheelchair lift for the convenience of the disabled. The lift is located in front of the door of the elevator on the ground floor. The lift is accessible to people in wheelchairs and is operated with a simple push of a button. The lift is currently in use by the disabled students, and it is expected to become more popular as awareness of its availability increases.

The Suffolk Journal strives to provide accessible content and supports equal opportunity for all individuals. If you encounter any issues with accessibility, please contact us at info@suff.jou. We are committed to creating an inclusive environment for all members of the academic community.
