I think what we have is a classic case of a superlative system.

Commentary

I think this type of system is generally one of the best things in the world. I mean, it's just like this thing that is the best thing in the world. It's just the best thing in the world.

OXFAM urges students to fast

By David Yost

OXFAM, a British organization that campaigns for social and economic justice, is urging students to fast as part of a global campaign to raise awareness about hunger in the United States. The group is calling on students to join the world's largest fast for human rights, which is taking place on November 21, 1985, and to support the cause of fighting hunger.

OXFAM reports that more than 800 million people worldwide go hungry every day, and that the number of hungry people in the United States is growing. The group is asking students to consider fasting for a day, or even for a longer period, to show solidarity with those who are suffering.

OXFAM also encourages students to get involved in local food drives and other activities to support the efforts of those fighting hunger. The group is calling on students to use their voices and actions to demand that governments take action to end hunger.

OXFAM's campaign is part of a wider effort to mobilize support for the United Nations' International Year of jubilee for debt forgiveness. The group believes that debt relief is a crucial step towards ending hunger, and is calling on governments to take action.

FOR YOUR HEALTH

What a difference a day can make

In a recent study, researchers found that simply eating a healthy breakfast can have a significant impact on health.

The study, published in the journal Nature, found that participants who ate a healthy breakfast had lower levels of inflammation, a marker of chronic disease, compared to those who skipped breakfast.

The researchers also found that those who ate a healthy breakfast had lower levels of blood pressure and a lower risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

The study's lead author, Dr. Jane Smith, said: "We were surprised to find such a strong effect of a single meal on long-term health outcomes. This highlights the importance of making healthy choices early in the day, which can have a significant impact on our overall health."

Gorman changes his Sox

by Michael Palma

It's about time! Gorman starts throwing the baseball on the Red Sox. Gone is Bob Ojeda, former American league pitcher (1971-1985). Gorman, now 43, will presumably provide starting rotation depth.

Morton appointed to curriculum committee
by Regina Gils

The Suffolk University community of faculty, staff, and students has welcomed the addition of 12 new members to the Curriculum Committee. The committee is a faculty body whose charge is to oversee the academic programs at Suffolk University. The committee has approximately 60 members, including 12 non-faculty members. Faculty members serve three-year terms, while non-faculty members serve one-year terms.

The following people have been appointed to the Curriculum Committee:

- Dr. Joseph Abate, Professor of Business Administration
- Dr. Laura Brown, Professor of English
- Dr. Jane Chong, Professor of History
- Dr. Susan Davis, Professor of Political Science
- Dr. Thomas Donlon, Professor of Psychology
- Dr. MaryEllen Farry, Professor of Accounting
- Dr. John Garlitz, Professor of Computer Science
- Dr. Jennifer Green, Associate Professor of Mathematics
- Dr. Margaret Hart, Professor of Business Administration
- Dr. Michael Horgan, Professor of Sociology
- Dr. Sarah Johnson, Professor of Criminal Justice
- Dr. Richard Kline, Professor of Philosophy

The Curriculum Committee is a vital component of the academic governance of the university, and its members are responsible for ensuring that the academic programs at Suffolk University are of high quality. The committee works closely with the deans and chairs of the various departments to develop and review the curriculum, and it also evaluates new courses and programs. The committee is committed to upholding the highest standards of academic excellence, and it is dedicated to ensuring that all students have the opportunity to receive a rigorous and challenging education.

Congressional bill may siphon financial aid
by Sandra Miller

In an attempt to slash the federal deficit, a bill has been proposed that would eliminate student financial aid significantly through the 1990s. The Senate and the House of Representatives have passed different versions of the bill, but it is expected to pass through Congress in the near future. This proposal, which is also known as the "Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act," would impose a surcharge of $14 billion on all federal programs, including education, health care, and social services.

The bill is intended to reduce the federal deficit by $1 trillion over the next decade. The surcharge would be applied to all federal programs, and it would affect all aspects of the budget, including education, healthcare, and social services. The bill is expected to have a significant impact on the funding available for these programs, and it is likely to cause significant cuts in the amount of money available for education, healthcare, and social services.

The bill is expected to be signed into law by the end of the month.
