House makes changes in financial aid programs

The House of Representatives approved legislation yesterday that would make changes to the Federal Student Aid Programs. The legislation calls for an increase in the amount of money available to students through the Pell Grant Program, and a decrease in the amount of money available to students through the Stafford Loan Program.

The Pell Grant Program provides grants to eligible students based on need. The maximum grant amount for the 1986-1987 academic year is $2,500. The legislation would increase the maximum grant amount to $3,000 for the 1986-1987 academic year.

The Stafford Loan Program provides loans to eligible students based on need. The maximum loan amount for the 1986-1987 academic year is $5,000. The legislation would decrease the maximum loan amount to $4,500 for the 1986-1987 academic year.

The legislation also includes provisions to strengthen the integrity of the Federal Student Aid Programs. The legislation would require that all students who receive financial aid must complete a financial need analysis, and that all students must be enrolled in a degree-granting institution.

Black leadership: Yesterday and today

By Dolores Filer

Robert Moses, civil rights activist and architect of the SULCO student government, was the speaker at Suffolk's celebration of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

Black leadership: The term is applied to the African American leadership of the 1970s. The black leadership was not always successful in their efforts. The black leadership often faced opposition from the white leadership. The black leadership was often criticized for their lack of unity and their inability to work together. The black leadership was often divided and this divided leadership made it difficult for them to accomplish their goals. The black leadership often faced opposition from the white leadership.
