By Nancy J. Patterson

The University's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences has named three new department chairmen: W. L. Gobler, B.S. in English, '52, M.A. in English, '54, M.S. in education, '71, chairman of the English department; and Dr. Florence Daniel has been appointed to head the English department.

In addition, Assistant Professor of English, Dr. Betty T. Garbarino, has been named assistant to the dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. She will replace the late Assistant Professor of English, Dr. Robert W. Purcell, who recently died of natural causes.

Professor Gobler said that the ongoing changes in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences reflect the work of the Council on Higher Education, which was established in 1968.

Dr. Daniel, who has taught for 10 years at the University, said she is looking forward to working with the College administration to continue the work started by her predecessor, Dr. Purcell.

Radio station looks to the future; hopes for new hookup, albums

By John Tann

WITF, the radio station on campus, is looking forward to the future, particularly to the possibility of a new hookup with the Office of Student Activities, which would allow the station to broadcast live music and events.

The station's Manager, Paul Brewer, said, "We are excited about the possibility of broadcasting live music and events. This would be a great way to promote campus events and bring students together."
SGA may approve precedent setting yearbook proposal

In a move that would set a precedent for future years, the Student Government Association (SGA) is expected to approve a new yearbook proposal. This decision, if made, would mark a significant change in the way the university records its history.

The proposal, which is currently under review by the SGA's Program Committee, outlines a number of changes to the current yearbook format. Among these changes is a more in-depth coverage of student life and events, with a particular focus on student organizations and campus activities.

SGA President John Smith said, "This new yearbook will be a reflection of the diverse and dynamic nature of our student body. It will celebrate the achievements and contributions of our students in a way that has never been done before."

The proposal has been met with mixed reactions from the student body. Some students are excited about the prospect of a more inclusive yearbook, while others are concerned about the potential increase in costs.

"I think this is a step in the right direction," said Senior Sarah Johnson. "It's important to recognize the contributions of all students, regardless of their background or affiliation." However, she added, "I'm a little worried about the price. I hope they can find a way to keep it affordable for everyone."
Porn star discusses obscenity charges

In Holdenville, a group of people met at the local bar. They were discussing the latest entertainment news. One of them mentioned an interesting story about a porn star who was facing obscenity charges.

The story was about a famous porn star who was arrested for producing and distributing explicit material. The police said that the material was deemed obscene by a court of law. The porn star was facing a serious charge and was facing the possibility of a long prison sentence.

The group was discussing the implications of the situation. They were concerned about the freedom of expression and the right to make adult entertainment. They agreed that the court's decision could have a significant impact on the adult entertainment industry.

They also discussed the possibility of a court appeal. The group agreed that the porn star had a strong case and that the court should review the decision carefully.

In the end, they were concerned about the wider implications of the situation. They were worried about the potential for censorship and the impact on the freedom of expression.

Bonin under fire; Suffolk’s Dean Sargent defends him

Suffolk’s Dean Sargent had a full-blown media battle on his hands to defend the school against general allegations of poor performance and audiovisual problems. At least 75 students were quoted in an article that appeared in a local newspaper. Suffolk had sent a memo to the board’s president indicating that he might be suspended by the board, but Sargent was able to quell the situation by sending a letter to the newspapers and saying that he had not been suspended. The Governor had written to the board, however, expressing his concern about the media battle. Suffolk’s Board of Trustees is expected to meet tomorrow to talk about the situation.

who's on first at Suffolk University?

The die-hards and loyalists among us. When it comes to showing up for games, you can hardly blame the fanatics for being so dedicated. They've been around for a long time and have seen better days. But for the rest of us, it's a different story. It seems like every year we have to start from scratch. And this year is no exception. The team has started off slow, but they're still in the mix. The fans are excited, but they're also a little worried. They don't want to see the team fall apart like it did last year. But they're hoping for a turnaround. After all, it's the home team, and they always support them.
Suffolk’s faculty authors
A bit of creativity from a small part of academia

By Lisa Knolleberg

Suffolk University's English Department recently honored faculty members for their writing in local publications. The event was a celebration of academic writing and the recognition of faculty who contribute to the cultural and intellectual life of the campus.

Professor of Philosophy John A. Johnson, Suffolk's most honored author, spoke about his experience of publishing and the importance of being published. His book, titled "The Realms of Philosophy," has received critical acclaim for its innovative approach to philosophical thought. Johnson emphasized the value of collaboration and the necessity of open dialogue in the pursuit of knowledge.

Another notable publication was "Reconstructing Reality," which was co-authored by Professor of Psychology James T. O'Neill and Professor of English Jane M. Gordon. The book explores the intersection of psychology and literature, offering a unique perspective on the human experience.

The event also highlighted the diversity of academic writing at Suffolk, with contributions ranging from literary fiction to academic essays. Professor of History Sarah L. Davis discussed her work on "The History of the Suffolk Red Sox," a book that chronicles the team's rich history and its impact on the local community.

The faculty authors were encouraged to continue their contributions to the academic community and were reminded of the importance of sharing knowledge with the broader public. The event was a testament to the vibrant intellectual life at Suffolk University and the dedication of its faculty to the pursuit of scholarly excellence.
Happy in its own class . . . for over a century

The family that works together sticks together. Suffolk's Angel's Pizzeria, along with its father, Bill (left), and son, Alec, own it. The pizzeria, opened in 1956, is an institution in all of Salem.

The story of the pizzeria started with Bill Angel. He and his family opened the restaurant on Western Avenue in 1956. They wanted to provide a place for people to come together and enjoy good food.

Alec Angel joined his father in the business in the 1990s. Together, they continue to keep the tradition alive.

I went in to interview the Angel family and was greeted by Bill Angel. He showed me around the restaurant and explained the history of the place.

Bill Angel was very friendly and welcoming. He told me about the history of the restaurant and how it has been a part of the community for over 60 years.

I asked Alec Angel about his role in the business. He said he helps with the day-to-day operations of the restaurant.

Alec Angel was very knowledgeable about the restaurant and its history. He was proud to be part of such a long-standing institution.

I left the restaurant feeling impressed by the Angel family's dedication to providing good food and a welcoming environment.

Ballet Co. fails to awaken 'Sleeping Beauty'

In New York

By Marien Nakazawa

The American Ballet Theater's new production of 'Sleeping Beauty' at City Center is a most unconvincing work. The dancers are capable, but the staging is simplistic and the story line doesn't pull together.

The ballet is based on the fairy tale by Ivanoff. The opening scene of the first act, 'The Kingdom of the Shades,' is confusing and the point of no return is too late in the act. The second act, 'The Kingdom of the Fairies,' is a mess. The third act, 'The Kingdom of the Carabosse,' is the most successful.

The music is by Tchaikovsky, the choreography by Joseph Manhire, and the sets by John LaRivoire. The costumes are by Ronald L. Hall and the lighting by Donald Saddler. The production is directed by Jiri Kylian.

The cast includes Misty Copeland, Donald Byrd, Calvin Royal III, and Paul Schiml.

The new album, '100戶,' continues their unique sound and offers a fresh take on traditional Japanese music.

The new album is a great addition to the band's discography and is one that fans of rock and traditional Japanese music are sure to enjoy.
