The Student Council has its Say

By NANCY OTIS

The Student Council, already plagued by growing pains, is currently in the throes of writing and adopting a constitution. Under the guidance of Dean Goodrich, Dean Florillo, and Mr. Edward Blackman, representatives of the council, the newly-elected members have drafted nine articles containing numerous sections and clauses. Discrepancies and differences have been thrashed out and the council has finally adopted, as yet unacted on by the approval of two-thirds of their number.

In the preamble, the purpose of the council has been set forth: "to cooperate in joint representation with both the faculty and students in coordinating and furthering the life of the college and to afford a medium of expression of undergraduate sentiment in an effort to elicit the views of the students and the student body in execution of such undergraduate procedures as may be needed within its province." As a change from the first electoral process, the council shall be composed of three representatives from each class, each day class and one representative from each evening class elected by their respective classes. This article will facilitate the former procedure of electing representatives, and will also allow the council to act as a whole.

Elections will hereafter be held on the first Tuesday in December each year, enabling the freshman class to become acquainted with Suffolk surroundings and habits of the college and furnish an adequate academic standing needed for running in the election. The council will then take office on the Monday following the election. Any vacancy, except in cases caused by graduation, shall be filled by a majority vote of the council.

The Student Council will meet twice monthly. Among powers delegated to it in the new Constitution, the council will regulate and supervise all undergraduate activities, mass meetings, and student demonstrations. It may confine itself to the governing bodies and faculty committees of the College or any members thereof, upon any subject pertaining to the undergraduate body and may have public statements concerning student affairs, either for the purpose of making recommendations to the student body, or forcibly reflecting the sentiments of the student body.

The Constitution provides that freshmen will not be eligible for the offices of President and Vice-President in the Council, but that a representative of any class may run for the offices of Secretary and Treasurer.

"The President shall have the power to create such temporary or permanent committees as he deems necessary at any time, or on a majority vote of the council at any meeting, he shall create committees as he directs. He is also empowered to appoint personal to all committees. One duty of the council is to give due consideration to any proposal concerning student affairs. Student organizations will be required to supply a complete accounting of all funds whenever the Student Council decides, provided that such accounting shall be made to the council at least once a semester. Student activities will also be subject to budgets to be ratified in advance of appropriation." This pertains to any student organization, with which the Council assumes ultimate financial responsibility.

This Constitution also provides various powers and duties of the council in addition to regulations on membership, method of election, meetings, officers, committees and amendments.

HARVARD CENSORSHIP

By SAMUEL B. CINAMON

Boston has a censor. That fact is borne home again and again by the publicity given to books that are not worth reading, to pictures that are not worth seeing. Of those books which are junk we do not wish to speak, but there are others and some of these others are classics. Not that they were not censored before but really too. A friend of ours picked up a book by Henry Miller, opened it to a page in the middle of his hand, and pronounced it disgusting. A few minutes later, Miller was saying to us: "You call this Miller was a poor writer. Yes, he is banned in Boston and in the United States for the nation.

The people of the country, the states, and the nation have the right to know why some books are not available to them. The law, as it is interpreted by the courts, permits the State to control the use of books. It is the type of books that we are referring.

What is dirt? Our answer is simple. Fod or dirt is that which is harmful to the growth of the emotions of a sexual nature. When the so called "dirty" in ULYSSES as an erotic instead of an aphrodisiac, then there is nothing filthy about it, no matter how many "dirty" words are used.

Boston makes itself look ridiculous in the eyes of the entire nation because of the emotional lines in its play before the eyes of our city can see P. L. Nonesuch. Perhaps our censor is not as intent as an aphrodisiac, then there is nothing filthy about it, no matter how many "dirty" words are used.

The Harvard Society for Industrial Democracy is a new organization which has been formed to promote the idea of a democratic society. It is the type of books that we are referring.

The society feels that the education of the people of the United States is important to the nation's future. It is the type of books that we are referring.
